Miguel de la Quadra Wants Island Back

By BILL THOMAS

Miguel de la Quadra arrived here Thursday with a party of fellow Spaniards and hinted he would like the spot in the Pacific his ancestor claimed in 1762.

The direct descendant of Don Juan Francisco de la Bodega y Quadra is the first member of the family to look over this area in six generations.

Mr. Quadra produced a photostatic copy of a map in the Madrid Naval Museum for Provincial Archivist Willard Ireland with Vancouver Island clearly marked as Isla de Quadra y Vancouver.

Mr. Ireland commented: "It was named that way for a long time and (Quadra) was dropped only around 1849."

The 36-year-old Quadra, who speaks little English, accommodated his interviewers in perfect French.

"I really would like to buy a small island here, the country is just so beautiful. We still have the Quadra family home and as I was growing up, my parents told me of the adventures of my famous ancestor."

He told Mr. Ireland a little-known story about the explorer. "Before he came north to this coast he sailed to Australia with the first cargo of Merino sheep from Peru."

"My sister did a study on him in university and found this out. My cousin is the mayor of Bilbao and has just written a complete biography of the explorer so I hope we can get a copy for the archives here."

"I presented a portrait of my ancestor to the premier. I hope nobody touches the point. It was only done two weeks ago. In a couple more weeks it can be varnished. I am not sure if he was told it's new."

"We were in a hurry so the museum in Madrid had this done for us. It's a copy of a painting made from a photograph of the original which is now in the Philippines on an exhibition tour. This one was done by a young artist who happens to be doing his military service. His name is Manuel Daniel. I also gave the premier a sword like the one Don Quadra is wearing in the picture."

"I am doing a film for television and I had hoped we could get to Nootka to film the place where Quadra took residence as governor in the name of Spain."

Miguel Quadra not only carries the name of the adventurous Don, he also has inherited his restless spirit. He explored the upper reaches of the Amazon River for three years, living with the natives in the dense forests and making films.

As a journalist he has covered fighting in the Congo, Vietnam, Santo Domingo and Biafra. He also travelled through Siberia and Mongolia.

Navy Will Guard Arctic, Too

OTTAWA (CP)—Canada's navy will have to guard the Arctic Ocean as well as the Atlantic and the Pacific coasts to back up Prime Minister Trudeau's policy of protecting national sovereignty.

A defence department spokesman said

Thursday that the naval role "is one which has to be enlarged."

A key point of the prime minister's April statements on Canada's changing defence role was the top priority given to protection of sovereignty.

He placed guarding the Arctic ahead of continental defence, NATO and United Nations peacekeeping operations.

In the Commons Wednesday, Defence Minister Leo Cadieux said the prime minister's statements should be encouraging to anyone "with a special interest in naval affairs."

Ottawa Denies Claims Cuts Blow to NATO

'Why
Pick
On Us?'

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada's annoyance with Britain and the United States for their comments on this country's planned troop reductions in Europe again came into the open Thursday.

Prime Minister Trudeau said in a Commons reply to Opposition Leader Robert Stanfield that he cannot see the logic in arguments put forward by British Defence Secretary Denis Healey and U.S. Defence Secretary Melvin Laird.

Stanfield had asked about assertions made by the two defence secretaries that a Canadian troop reduction in Europe would create a need for earlier use of nuclear weapons in the event of war.

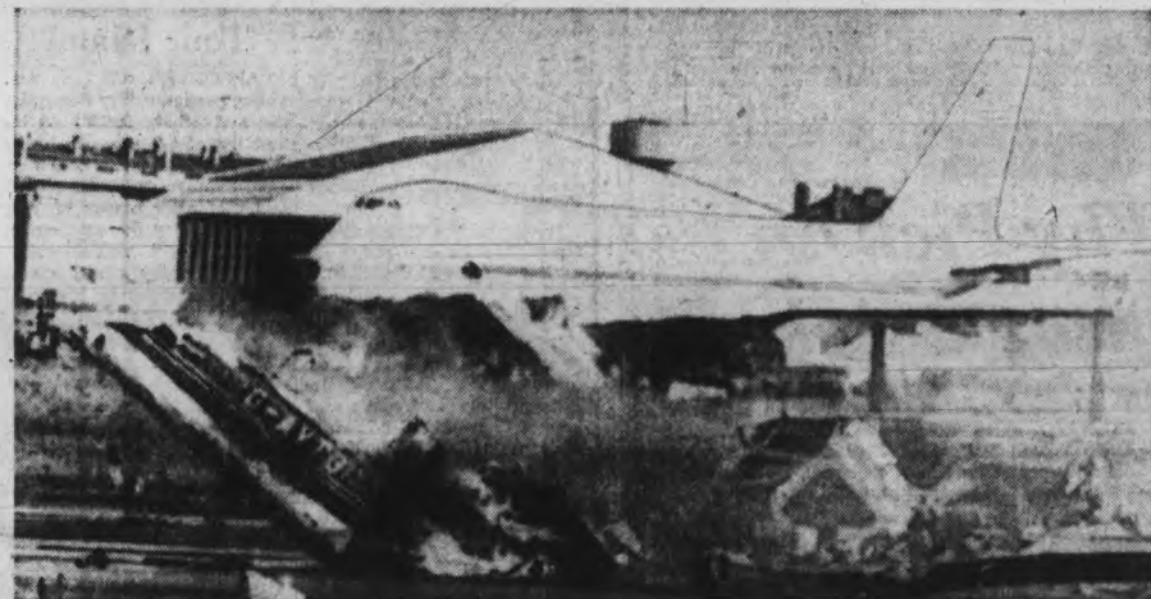

CONVENTIONAL. Trudeau said the British and American argument might make sense if NATO was withdrawing all conventional forces from Europe.

The prime minister said Canada is trying to establish a conventional force which will not increase the danger of nuclear warfare. Moreover it hoped to reduce its nuclear commitments.

It was not the first time Trudeau has put down Healey publicly.

Work Halts at Kaiser

VANCOUVER (CP) — Work stopped Thursday at the multi-million dollar Kaiser Coal development in southeastern British Columbia as labor disputes continued to plague the province. Local 213 of the Teamsters Union placed pickets at four access roads to the coal project after striking against a subcontracting firm, Fred Sowchuk Trucking Ltd.

The picket line was honored by 650 members of the building trades union employed by Kaiser Resources.

ROBERTS BANK Teamsters official Kenneth Scott said the union has joint certification with the contractor but has not been able to negotiate an agreement.

In a second action, work stopped on a section of the Roberts Bank deep sea port rail link 20 miles south of here. The strike was sparked by a disagreement over hiring procedures.

LESS MEAT?

Construction at the port itself, being built to handle Kaiser Coal, was not affected by the walkout staged by the International Union of Operating Engineers.

As a dispute which has closed 102 Lower Mainland supermarkets continued, a spokesman for a large packing house said the meat available to consumers has been cut by 75 per cent. However, this was challenged by a second firm which said consumers still have access to about 65 per cent of normal supplies.

A meatcutters' union spokesman said negotiations with six major chain stores were suspended Wednesday because of a deadlock over hours of work.

FUNDS SOUGHT

Also, the Retail, Food and Drug Clerks' Union, locked out of the same stores, is canvassing union members throughout the province for funds to support their local members.

Robbers
Flee
By Yacht

QUEBEC (CP)—Four masked bandits, one of them a woman, escaped up the St. Lawrence River in a small yacht Thursday after robbing a post office in suburban Levis of $110,000 in cash and bonds.

The robbers exchanged about 20 shots with pursuing police but made their escape with the help of a succession of stolen vehicles.

Even Saigon Group Backing Coalition

PARIS (Reuters) — Formation of a new South Vietnamese government as a step toward peace emerged as a major topic Thursday in Paris, Washington and Saigon.

A Viet Cong spokesman meeting correspondents after the 20th session of the Paris peace talks, said contacts are beginning with anti-government South Vietnamese in a bid to create a provisional coalition administration in Saigon.

State Secretary William Rogers said in a Washington news conference that the U.S. would accept Communists in a future South Vietnamese government if they were freely and fairly elected.

And in Saigon, a group of leading intellectuals proposed a four-point peace plan which would include an interim "conciliatory" government to run the country prior to new elections.

Tran Hoa Nam, Viet Cong spokesman, disclosed to reporters that contacts are beginning in South Vietnam and Paris with "Vietnamese personalities" opposed to the administration of President Nguyen Van Thieu.

Rogers, who was not commenting on the Paris disclosures, said Thieu is ready to accept Communists in a South Vietnamese government if they were freely and fairly elected.

Red-Fearing Blondes May Go Into Discard

VANCOUVER (CP)—Charles McLean said Wednesday night that if he is elected British Columbia Conservative party leader he will change the image of the party by getting rid of "the 55-year-old blondes who see a Red under every bed."

"These are the governors of our party right now," he said.

Mr. McLean, speaking to 50 persons at a meeting of the party's Vancouver Centre Riding Association, also criticized the present Conservative attitude towards politics.

He said the reason the party hasn't elected anyone is because it is operating as amateurs.

Mr. McLean, a lawyer, said he considered the labor legislation passed by the present Social Credit administration the finest in North America.

The problem is, he said, neither labor nor management trust the Social Credit government sufficiently to allow the legislation to operate.

Colors Wild for Cheats As Cards Given Rinse

TORONTO (CP) — Blondes and card cheats have more fun using Miss Clairol hair color, an RCMP documents expert told forensic scientists here Thursday.

The color is applied and quickly wiped off. Invisible under normal circumstances, the markings show up fairly clearly when the cheat throws his eyes slightly out of focus.

It's a trick with the eyes that can be acquired with about half an hour's practice.

Quadra Wants Island

In search of material for news stories.

Walking through the legislative buildings, he tapped his stomach saying "I am now too busy to exercise and good food is getting to me."

Mr. Quadra was Spain's outstanding athlete. He held national records for throwing the javelin, hammer tossing and weightlifting. He was national champion with the discus for 10 years and held a world record with the javelin which was disallowed because of his unorthodox style.

Mr. Quadra competed in the Olympic Games in 1956 and 1960 and is also a champion Greek-Roman wrestler. He was also on his country's bobbed team in the Winter Olympics.

He is here with a party of Spanish journalists and travel agents as the guest of the provincial government and Canadian Pacific Airlines, and is making a film of his travels. Mr. Quadra is just back from a six-week trip into the desert of Iraq where he made films for his Spanish television show Toda Plana. This means Full Page.

As Mr. Quadra was being interviewed for CBC television, his own cameramen were filming his being filmed. Another member of the party eased himself onto the hood of a parked car for a rest. He watched with amusement and then said in precise English as he caught sight of the statue of Queen Victoria:

"That's my wife's great-grandmother. The observation came from the Duke of Badajoz.

Luis Abeco-Gomez, Duke of Badajoz and Viscount d'La Torre is married to a member of the Borbon family and his wife is the daughter of Don Juan, pretender of the Spanish throne.

Having such a distinguished family has its own problems as His Excellency explained.

"We have family all over Europe. Queen Victoria had so many children. They seem to come in droves of dukes and counts. They arrive in Madrid and they all expect lunch or dinner."

The duke's wife is the granddaughter of Queen Victoria's daughter Victoria Eugenia and the Spanish King Alfonso XIII.

After the filming, the duke returned to his Empress Hotel suite to battle a case of upset stomach. Travellers who got to Europe and complain about the same problem can take solace in the fact that the trouble hits visitors to Canada.

The hardy Mr. Quadra ordered a shot of Canadian whisky and started looking into the matter of getting an island. He would be content with just a small one if he can't get the big one back. There's not much chance of his getting Vancouver Island or Quadra Island for that matter.

Canada will also reduce its six-squadron nuclear-armed bomber force in West Germany. Because of the high serviceability rate of its planes, this force can put into the air at a given time probably twice as many aircraft as any other NATO formation of the same size and type.

Sources here said London began reducing the British Army of the Rhine long before Canada contemplated cuts in its troop strength in Europe.

They also said Canada is annoyed that Healey prepared a report for NATO calling for early use of nuclear weapons in event of a conventional Soviet assault and later asserted that a Canadian reduction would make such early use necessary.

only one of several being used in an upsurge of card cheating in British Columbia. He described the techniques and problems to the fifth international meeting of forensic sciences.

Gangs of card sharps are making capital of the loneliness of the British Columbia logging and construction camps, Brown said.

"It's fantastic right now, just as bad as bad cheque rings," he told reporters. He estimates there are 40 or 50 card sharps operating among the isolated camps and smaller communities.

When caught, they generally are hard to convict and, when convicted, are usually out of jail in a year, and right back to the cards. Generally, they operate in gangs of three or four men.

The newer twist to card cheating is the use of colored contact lenses which filter out all colors from the backs of cards except the color used in marking the deck. Ball point pen ink, applied and rapidly rubbed off, will do the marking job without a trace except to someone wearing colored contact lenses.

The B.C. gangs use all the old standbys of the card sharp—changes in the pattern on the back to indicate card suit and value, minute fingernail marks or Braille-like punctures.

Most of the markings can be detected by the trained eye, except for those requiring contact lenses. But generally the cheats give themselves away by getting too greedy.

Brown told of one gang, en route to a construction camp, into a black jack game, taking the chief magistrate for $3,000 and the others for a total of $3,000 before they twigged to the cheating.

The gang grabbed their marked, and apparently brand new decks, and fled in a car, only to crash into a parked vehicle. Because they had both marked and unmarked cards in their possession no body could prove marked ones were used. They couldn't be convicted of cheating.

"But we had them for drunk driving and hit and run," said Brown.

Usually suspicion is aroused when they take chances on the turn of a card that no normal cardplayer would take, when it is noticed that the gang is doing all the winning.

VANCOUVER (CP)—An Australian parliamentary delegation will arrive here Sunday on the first leg of a 2½ week, 10-city tour of Canada. John Chapman, Australian trade commissioner said that after a tour of Vancouver Monday the six-member delegation will visit Nanaimo and on Tuesday attend a government luncheon in Victoria.

are properly elected. But he apparently ruled out any possibility of creating a coalition without elections.

Similarly, the South Vietnamese intellectuals who called for a "reconciliatory" interim government stressed they are not advocating a coalition. However, he intellectuals' proposals called for a government representatives acceptable to all parties.

Initial American and South Vietnamese reaction to the Viet Cong disclosure was that the contacts mentioned by Nam were of little significance.

Okinawa GIs Blamed

Party Chief Bayoneted In Scuffle

The Los Angeles Times TOKYO (LAT) — An Okinawan legislator was wounded Thursday in a scuffle with U.S. soldiers on the U.S.-ruled island and Japanese television and press erupted with pictures of GIs armed with bayonets holding back striking workers.

While embarrassed American civil administrator Stanley Carpenter apologized, opposition parties in Tokyo gleefully capitalized on the episode as evidence of the ruthless oppression by the U.S. military government.

JAPANESE PLEA

The incident occurred as attention was focused on Okinawa by the Washington visit of Foreign Minister Kishi, Aichi to urge the return of Okinawa to Japan by 1972, with U.S. bases stripped of nuclear weapons and their use subject to Japanese veto.

Gen. William Lampert, high commissioner of the Ryukyu Islands as well as military commander of all forces stationed there, was reported to have ordered the removal of bayonets from rifles of men on guard duty after a protest from Chibyo Yara, chief executive of the civil government.

But there was no explanation why the U.S. servicemen were stationed outside the base gates where they came in direct contact with striking workers. Until now, the policy of the U.S. administration in Okinawa had been to use Okinawan police to control demonstrations and keep U.S. military inside.

IN PICKET FRAY

U.S. military headquarters have confirmed that Tsumichyo Asato, leader of the Socialist Masses Party (a middle-of-the-road group contrary to its name), was injured when guards drove pickets away from the gates of the army's second logistical command, a huge warehouse and storage complex between the island's capital city of Naha and the main U.S. air base at Kadena, 20 miles north.

Asato's alleged bayonet wound was regarded as slight but enough to cause Carpenter to issue a statement of regret and promise a complete investigation.

All Japanese newspapers Thursday evening published a photograph of military policemen with bayonets fixed pursuing Asato and a companion along the highway near the main gate of second logistical command headquarters. By nightfall, the semi-official television network showed newsreels of soldiers with carbines and bayonets leveled against demonstrators.

24-HOUR STRIKE

The Okinawa military employees union, which claims to represent 20,000 of 50,000 persons directly or indirectly hired by the U.S. forces on the island, called a 24-hour strike in defiance of labor ordinances banning strikes by military employees. A mass meeting Wednesday afternoon voted the strike in support of pay increases and in protest against the proposed discharge of 164 workers classed as surplus by the military.

Lampert has been engaged in a contest of wills with the union since his installation as high commissioner six months ago. He was forced to withdraw a new labor ordinance which would have outlawed political action by workers after the Japanese government opposed the measure.

The open defiance of the general union, which previously called strikes "unauthorized leave," was believed to have goaded some military commanders into violating policy by sending men outside the bases.

Ottawa Extends Cyprus Pledge

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada is willing to participate in the United Nations force in Cyprus for a further six months, External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp told the Commons Thursday.

Replying to Douglas Harkness (PC-Ontario Centre), Sharp said he is not sure that Canada had yet been asked to continue its membership in the 4,000-member UN force on the Mediterranean island. But if it were asked it would agree.

Harkness, former Conservative defence minister, asked whether the size of the Canadian force would be changed. Sharp said he hoped it will be reduced.

Five Boycott Parley

Brezhnev Pleads Unity

MOSCOW (Reuters) — Soviet party chief Leonid Brezhnev opened the twice-postponed world Communist summit conference Thursday with a 10-minute speech which avoided mention of the two most divisive topics in the worldwide movement—China and the invasion of Czechoslovakia.

Delegations from 75 foreign Communist parties—six less than the total at the last summit in 1960—heard Brezhnev issue a rallying call for unity in the struggle against Western imperialism.

DEBATE EXPECTED

The two important topics avoided by the Soviet leader are expected to cause heated debate and discussion among the delegations, despite Soviet attempts to gloss over serious differences on the Aug. 28 Czechoslovak invasion and the Sino-Soviet ideological split.

The summit is being held behind closed doors in the ornately-decorated St. George's Hall—built in memory of Czarist military units and officers—in the ancient Kremlin Grand Palace.

PLANNED PRO-SOVIET

A group of about 100 Soviet and foreign correspondents, including about 10 Westerners, were taken into the sealed-off Kremlin, but were allowed only a 10-minute look at the scene before the summit began.

The conference, the result of six years' effort by the Kremlin, originally was intended to gather faithful parties behind the Russians in the Sino-Soviet dispute.

But the unwillingness of a number of major parties to condemn China publicly forced the Soviet Union to drop its plans for general rejection of Peking policies.

UNITED FRONT

Instead the Russians are attempting to obtain a unified front in the East-West struggle and have been manoeuvring to still criticism of the Soviet-led invasion of Czechoslovakia.

Despite a tacit agreement between Prague and Moscow that the invasion is a topic only for themselves, several delegations—notably those from Italy and Australia—are reported planning to raise the issue in the conference.

Staying away from the summit are five of the 14 Communist nations—China, Albania, North Korea, North Vietnam and Yugoslavia. China and its European ally, Albania, refuse to have anything to do with Moscow, and Yugoslavia is demonstrating once again its independence of Russia.

Blasts Recall Mideast War

TEL AVIV (Reuters) — Grenade and bomb explosions by Arab guerrillas in Jerusalem and Gaza and a bazooka ambush which killed three Israeli soldiers marked the second anniversary Thursday of the start of the six-day Arab-Israeli war of 1967.

The anniversary also was marked by an abortive student demonstration in Nabulus on the Jordan River's west bank and what an Israeli spokesman called a few intermittent bursts of small arms fire and minor shelling across the Suez Canal.

Israeli sources said troubles during the day were less than expected.

Syria marked the anniversary by formally recognizing East Germany, while in Baghdad demonstrators staged a mock trial and sentenced the Shah of Iran to death as a "collaborator with Zionism."

In Jordan, which suffered most from the six-day war, newspapers appeared framed in black mourning bands.

THREE KILLED

Stores were closed in the Arab sector of Jerusalem and in Nabulus in response to a strike call made in clandestine leaflets circulated during the week.

But elsewhere Israeli sources said most stores ignored the strike call.

Guerrillas with a bazooka fired on an Israeli army command car patrolling south of Gaza town. Three Israelis were killed and three injured.

One Israeli soldier and four Arab civilians were injured by a grenade in front of Herod's Gate in Jerusalem. Several persons were arrested.

TEENAGERS

In the Gaza Strip, home of 300,000 refugees and a centre of Arab guerrilla activity since captured by Israel two years ago, a hand grenade was thrown into a market place at Rafiah. No injuries were reported.

Police in Jerusalem charged into a crowd of teenagers carrying wreaths to lay on the graves of Jordanian soldiers killed in the six-day war.

Water hoses scattered them onto side streets.

Egypt Thursday remained pessimistic about chances of an early Middle East settlement.

Tight Controls Govern Newspapers in Greece

ZURICH (Reuters) — The Greek mass media still is subjected to humiliating controls two years after the army-backed government came to power, an article in the monthly bulletin of the International Press Institute says.

The article says the Greek government exercises rigorous control which might give the impression that censorship has been relaxed.

The article was written by staff member Armand Gaspard. The institute, which promotes press freedom, is composed of more than 1,500 newspaper editors and publishers in many non-Communist countries.

Commentary in Greece has become holder in pro-government newspapers, but censorship is "small-minded and nagging," particularly in liberal papers, Gaspard writes.

He cites the suppression in literary articles of the names of Russian playwright Anton Chekhov, who died in 1904 before the Communist revolution, and Herbert Marcuse, American left-wing scholar.

The Greek press neither reported nor commented on many subjects of direct interest to its readers.

"The information media has had to abdicate its role as watchdog over encroachments on individual rights, injustice or affairs which might damage the national economy."

Greeks who wanted news about their own country either had to listen to foreign radio stations or read foreign newspapers.

An underground press had developed, but "publishing, distributing and even reading these resistance sheets is an enormous risk."

Viet Defies Laird, Cites 'Confession'

SAIGON (UPI) — North Vietnam Thursday denied it was mistreating captured American airmen and broadcast a statement it attributed to the son of the top U.S. commander in the Pacific to back up the claim.

Radio Hanoi quoted Lieut. Cmdr. John McCain III, a navy pilot who was shot down 20 months ago, as saying he has received "very good medical treatment" from his North Vietnamese captors.

McCain's father, Admiral John McCain Jr., is commander of U.S. forces in the Pacific.

RESPONSE TO LAIRD The English-language broadcast was one of a recent series from American prisoners in North Vietnam beamed into South Vietnam. It was apparently initiated in response to a plea by Defence Secretary Melvin Laird May 19 that North Vietnam begin treating prisoners according to the humanitarian standards set by the Geneva convention.

Laird also asked North Vietnam to release the nearly 800 American airmen it has captured.

The statement from McCain, as broadcast by Hanoi radio, said:

"I have bombed the cities, towns and villages and caused injuries and even death for the people of North Vietnam."

"After I was captured, I was taken to hospital in Hanoi where I received very good medical treatment. I was given an operation on my leg which enabled me to walk again and a cast on my right arm, which was badly broken in three places."

"The doctors are very good and they knew a great deal about medicine."

A Radio Hanoi announcer said Laird was "distorting the truth" about the captured U.S. airmen.

'GIVEN THE LIE' "These captive airmen have long since given the lie to Laird's allegations," the announcer said.

North Vietnam has refused to permit any international body, such as the Red Cross, to inspect the conditions in which the American prisoners live, and there is no confirmation that they have received letters written by relatives.

Day for Remembering

THIS IS A DAY for remembering but not for rejoicing. This is the anniversary of a tremendous adventure which marked the beginning of the end of a terrible tyranny in Europe. But with the fall of Adolf Hitler's Reich the peoples of the world did not escape, as they had hoped, from fear and hatred. They still live under threat of a disaster more dreadful, more complete than anything the mad man of Berlin could have conceived to inflict upon his enemies.

Whatever the faults and failures of men, they do occasionally rise to great achievements. And however badly they have blundered since, the lustre of the record of June 6, 1944, is in no way diminished. That was a time of great daring, of sacrifice, courage and incredible endurance from the moment the first few leaped onto the beaches between Cherbourg and Le Havre.

Thousands of Canadians were among the shock troops with which the high command gambled that day, many from Victoria and Vancouver Island, represented by the distinguished Canadian Scottish Regiment which has won honors in two wars. And there were many more at sea and in the air supporting them.

A fleet of more than 4,000 ships crowded the bustling Baie de la Seine by daybreak, and 11,000 aircraft continued the greatest bombardment in history.

The Canadian Scottish, brigaded with the Winnipeg Rifles and the Regina Rifles, climbed down the scrambling nets into their assault craft at 6:45 a.m. and three-quarters of an hour later were on the sands of code-named Juno Beach.

They struck southward, in the direction of Caen, later to be the scene of a great victory in which they participated. By midnight they had advanced farther than any other component of the 2nd Army.

Military historians credit the Canadians with diverting such great enemy strength, both infantry and armor, that the hard-pressed Americans at Omaha Beach were saved from devastating losses which could very well have endangered the whole operation.

This is not a matter for boastfulness, but it is nevertheless a legitimate source of pride, both for those engaged and their countrymen who honor them on this anniversary.

Victorians can show their appreciation when the veterans join the regiment in sunset ceremonies on the Legislature's grounds at 8 tonight.

Year for Research

THE GOVERNMENT OF CANADA is embarking on another study — this time through the agency of three consulting firms — on the feasibility of re-establishing a deep-sea shipping industry.

What Transport Minister D. C. Jamieson wishes first of all to determine is whether the federal government would be justified in spending to support such a program.

This sort of caution is reasonable enough, but the primary consideration would seem to be the calculation of demand.

True enough, Canada is a great exporting nation, and without a merchant marine would appear to be woefully handicapped. But the fact remains that Canadian shippers have found it more economical to charter than to operate their own ships. There was a time when some of the big lumber exporters used their own vessels, but for one reason or another they have largely abandoned the practice.

The cause that immediately comes to mind is the excessive cost in wages. The Seafarers International demands were certainly expensive. Some companies escaped this burden by registering under a foreign flag which allowed them to hire outside the union at a very considerable saving. But possibly the largest difficulty to be overcome in the resuscitation of a Canadian merchant marine is the fierce competition of foreign vessels, whose operating costs are well below those that can be anticipated in any fleet sailing under our flag. Some means must be found to meet it, and subsidization is the obvious answer.

The problem will be to justify it.

Certainly there would be great benefits for industry and labor in a revived shipping industry.

But the best possible argument in favor would appear to lie in the fact that this great exporting nation spends something like half a billion dollars a year in foreign charter to deliver its products around the world.

We could keep this money in our own pockets if we had our own ships to carry our goods.

Undoubtedly the government's consultants are aware of this truism and have very much more information on which to base their recommendations. What bothers some people is that the minister of transport has given them a whole year to come up with their answers, when in a matter of some urgency it might have been expected they would need little more than a weekend.

In the circumstances there is bound to be some doubt that the government is seriously bent upon a Canadian shipbuilding program and the operation of a merchant fleet, and the suspicion that this is another bit of political window-dressing. Let us hope not.

Time of Opportunity

A BIG INCREASE in the price of beef has brought a suggestion from the Victoria branch of the Consumers Association that shoppers stop buying it. But others are probably correct in surmising that a boycott would have more effect in raising the price of alternatives than in bringing down the price of beef. This is so because the problem is not local. There is a general shortage of cattle throughout Canada, and the highest cattle prices in 17 years in the United States combined with unabated consumer demand there ensure that the shortage will continue.

The hope of relief is not for the near future. But in the United States as well as in Canada there is talk of buyer resistance. Even the president of the St. Louis National Stockyards Company is quoted as counselling housewives tired of paying high prices to stop buying beef. It is only widespread action in both countries, however, that will count.

While the shortage and the consequent stiff prices continue, the fishing industry will be missing a great opportunity if it fails to take maximum advantage of the consumers' casting about for beef substitutes.

A panel of homemakers in Toronto recently agreed that fish because of its high protein content and economy was a good food, but insisted that "it needs more selling."

Now is best of times for the industry—a local industry, too—to get out and sell.

Paratroopers help Canadian artillerymen wheel a field gun into position on the outskirts of Courseulles during the initial operations in Normandy on D-Day, June 6, 1944. In the first 24 hours of the invasion the Allies took more than 2,000 field pieces ashore at the beach-head.

25 Years After Normandy Invasion . . .

Memories of a Fateful Day Remind Canadians
Of Grave New Challenges Facing the Nation

GENERAL Eisenhower announces that British, Canadian and American troops "have effected a landing on the coast of France." Each dramatic word in that famous D-Day communiqué, issued by Supreme Allied Headquarters just 25 years ago today, is still clearly etched in my mind. They had been the source of an angry dispute between myself and my American and British colleagues for several days before the actual invasion of Normandy. All the months of training, planning and equipping, and even the concentration of troops in the marshalling areas of south east England, had been completed.

For Canada it climaxed the greatest concentration of national effort in our entire history. Close to a third of the initial assault forces to be landed in France on D-Day would be Canadian: infantry brigades and armored regiments, artillery, engineers, parachute troops and all other elements of the assault formations would include Canadian components.

In the air Canada was represented by some 48 RCAF squadrons in various theatres of war, apart from our airmen serving in RAF squadrons. In the great naval armada of the Normandy landing were 64 Canadian warships, apart from countless small landing craft.

As the final details were being re-checked at 21 Army Group Headquarters a few days before the assault, I asked to see the draft of the first official communiqué which would be issued. It read "British and American" troops had effected the landing. I immediately protested and insisted that the word "Canada" must be incorporated. While the build-up of U.S. and U.K. formations would quickly outnumber the Canadian component, after the beachhead was captured, it was unthinkable that Canada, with nearly a third of the assault force on D-Day, would not even be mentioned. It was grudgingly accepted that the proposed wording would be changed to meet my protest.

Two days before the landing I again asked to see the revised wording. It now read "American, British and Empire" troops. When the communiqué was issued, it was unthinkable that Canada, with nearly a third of the assault force on D-Day, would not even be mentioned. It was grudgingly accepted that the proposed wording would be changed to meet my protest.

R. S. MALONE, author of this account, is a former brigadier in the Canadian Army, served with the First, Third and Fifth Canadian Divisions and on Field Marshal Montgomery's staff during the war years. He participated in the Normandy landings and held appointments on the headquarters of both 21 Army group and also 1st Canadian Army.

Bretteville and Creully, the hedgerogs and the pill boxes. Bernieres is the name which will come to men of the Cameron Highlanders of Ottawa, the Sherbrooke Fusiliers, the HLI, the "North Novies" and the "SDGs".

Every province of Canada was represented on the land, in the air and afloat. They all wore a similar shoulder flash, "Canada"; and, in company with the British and Americans, thought of themselves proudly and solely as Canadians, not Westerners, French Canadians or Maritimers. There were no thoughts of separatism that morning, Canada could rightly carry her head high at home and on the battlefields.

D-Day marked the apex of a great national purpose and achievement. Since the outbreak of war Canada had shouldered great responsibilities. There had been the vast Empire Air Training scheme, a huge shipbuilding program of destroyers, corvettes and merchant ships to keep the Atlantic convoys running. Canadian factories had worked overtime to produce a staggering contribution of vehicles, tanks, shells and weapons which had helped feed all the Allied armies whether in the Middle East, the Western front or the vast Russian front via the dangerous Murmansk run. All aspects of our economy, the production of our mines, our farms and our forests as well as our financial resources had been mobilized to a single national purpose from coast to coast.

In the government buildings in Ottawa, directing the nation's affairs, sat the ablest body of administrators ever gathered together from across the Dominion. In the wartime cabinet were such men as Ralston, Howe, Crerar, Angus Macdonald, Isley and "Chubby" Power. The competence and stature of our civil services, strengthened by the recruiting of "dollar-a-year" men from all sections of Canada was recognized throughout the world. Canadians had fought in the Battle of Britain and with the 8th Army in Sicily and Italy. There had been the tragedies of Hong Kong and Dieppe.

Apart from our great military contribution on June 6 in Normandy, a Canadian Corps was also fighting in Italy and special Canadian detachments, both military and civilian, were serving in each of the other theatres of war.

Each day our newspapers recorded sacrifices and contributions of Canada and Canadians toward peace and world order. News reports were written by such war correspondents as Ralph Allen, Matthew Halton, J. A. M. Cook, Lionel Shapiro and others who are now dead.

But while memories of veterans, widows and our older citizens will hark back to these stirring events and the quiet cemetery at Bury-Sur-Mer on this 25th anniversary, I am certain their recollections will be dominated by a different and present-day reflection, that is spotlighted by those days of high courage, sacrifice and achievement.

They will wonder what has happened to us. What has become of our dedication to the principle of collective security? How can we hold up our heads while we duck out the back door on our NATO commitment to our Allies? Didn't Mackenzie King pledge that Canadian troops would remain in Europe as long as they were needed? What has happened to our national unity and purpose that we now glibly talk of separatism from Quebec or Western Canada? What is happening to our universities? What has produced the wave of dope, pot addicts and "hippies" among our youth? Why have we tolerated a series of weak governments in Ottawa which lead the nation along the road of inflation, protection, debt and devaluation? Why have we been content to accept the permissive society and violence? Why have we been content to sit back and watch Germany and Japan from utter defeat now lead the way with industrial expansion and recovery? It is the shallow fashion of these times to dismiss such things with a shrug of the shoulder.

Our armed services demonstrate the most shameful contrast today. Twenty-five years ago their morale, efficiency and respect were unequalled. Today through the ill-informed experiments of Paul Hellyer with his unrealistic dream of unification, the shameful performance of the Diethelm government during the Cuban crisis and Prime Minister Trudeau's present fuzzy and academic approach to NATO and NORAD, the morale of our services is at an all time low. It is such reflections as these, I believe, which will dominate the thoughts of Normandy veterans on this anniversary. Memories of the past are very real but there is greater concern for the present which is much more pressing. There is much less to be proud of today. Where is Canada headed? How can we with conscience face our allies—or answer to those who gave their lives for Canada on the beaches and countryside of Normandy? The memory of D-Day surely faces Canada with a challenge—to put our house in order—to once more carry our load in world responsibilities, to regain our self respect and purpose, to produce effective leadership and direction.

Today in History

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The greatest military force ever assembled in history launched the invasion of Europe in the Normandy landings 25 years ago today—in 1944. Allied armies smashed their way onto the beaches as paratroopers secured a grip farther inland. The Allies' foothold was assured by the second day of the invasion, giving them the necessary purchase to begin fighting through Nazi-occupied Europe to the eventual destruction of the German armies.

How the Kremlin Tames the Czechs

By KAMIL WINTER from London

SIX weeks of the new Czechoslovak leadership have brought about more and more radical changes than most observers predicted when Gustav Husak took over from Alexander Dubcek as first secretary of the Czechoslovak Communist Party.

Here are some significant examples:

The restoration of rigid censorship over press, radio and television; the replacement of the chief editor and two of his deputies of the central organ of the Communist Party, Rude Pravo, by reliable yes-men, known to have remained untouched by the liberalization movement.

They had been foreign correspondents in Bonn throughout 1968).

The dismissal of six members of the television news department, including the chief editor and his deputies; the banning of the outspoken party weekly, Politika, and of the students paper Studentske Listy.

The dismissal of the entire editorial board of the Party Daily Nova Svoboda in the important industrial region of Ostrava; the summoning of 16 prominent progressive journalists to the powerful Party Control Commission, where they will be asked to "give account" of their writings.

And now there are rumors that Husak himself will either be replaced or his power curtailed as the final twist of the thumbscrews on Czechoslovakia.

There apparently are two reasons why the first few effective measures were directed against the mass media and the journalists. First of all, it has been an old Soviet demand that the mass media should be brought "under control" again, and Mr. Husak was resolved from the very beginning to become a trusted partner of Moscow.

Besides, he never made a secret of his view that there had to be limits to the freedom of the press, and that it was for the party to set and control these limits.

Secondly, Husak knows that the journalists are only a small group in society, and vulnerable because of their special position. As if nothing had happened in 1968, the Soviet Union is again being presented to the Czechoslovak people as their "only friend and ally," without whom "socialism cannot be developed." Needless to say, the aged hodge of imperialist aggression.

Anniversary of Victory

Israel Is Stronger
Since June War

By RONALD HARKER.

A MOOD of resignation is upon the Israelis as the second anniversary draws near of their staggering defeat of the Arabs. Peace is no nearer than on June 10, 1967. It is hard to find anyone with a convincing policy for breaking the deadlock. Expectation of another large-scale conflict varies from admission that it is likely to certainty that it must come.

This is not to say that Israelis view the prospect with despair or fear. The Six-Day War which trebled the land area under their control also shortened and enormously strengthened their strategic position.

In the north they cleared the Golan Heights of Syrian guns that had menaced their valley settlements for 20 years. They have all the West Bank—of Jordan, instead of a bulge squeezing the middle of Israel to a 10-mile waist between the enemy and the sea. In the south they have triangular Sinai, a vast sand cushion pinning Egypt behind the Suez Canal. And they have all Jerusalem as their capital instead of a severed city.

Any foreign visitor who sees the wrecked gunpits on the Golan slopes today cannot imagine they will ever be given back, to hostile ownership. Any Israeli suggesting it, recalling the cost in blood of winning tanks up to take the hilltops and finding Syrian soldiers there, deserted by their officers, but chained to their guns, would be rated a lunatic.

Equally, any visitor to old Jerusalem seeing devout Jews hobnobbing themselves into a religious trance at the night-long floodlit Wailing Wall, cannot conceive its surrender to an alien faith; and any ecumenical Israeli who proposed it would be rated either crazy or a traitor.

Holding all this territory, the military advantages to Israel over 1967 would be reduced in any new conflict only by the diminished options for taking the enemy by surprise.

In its simplest terms, the Israeli case is: "We didn't want war in 1967 and we don't want it again. We want peace with the Arabs, so let the Arabs sit down with us and see how this can be brought about."

To the Israelis this is sane and reasonable. But if the Arabs, as one worried Israeli MP asked in Parliament the other day, refused to sit down and negotiate after the Six Day War, when their armies were almost destroyed and the authority of President Nasser and King Hussein was on the brink of collapse, how can any serious person believe they will agree to negotiate directly now that their armies have been rebuilt, and talks between the Big Four Powers in New York hold out a prospect of a settlement imposed upon Israel, with concessions to the Arabs the Israelis will never willingly make?

After two years, this same MP asked, had the actions of the Israeli government brought peace? Had it even brought any respite or relaxation? Had stability been reached in the occupied territories? Had the government's policies brought direct negotiations any nearer? Or had they even resulted in a better understanding for Israel's cause in the outside world?

The answer to all these questions, he declared, was "No."

The ordinary Israeli may be uneasy about this, but he does not ask the questions out loud. The MP who asked them is a member of a small minority party, and he had to pay to get them published—as an advertisement in the Jerusalem Post.

If, however, it was heartening to an outsider to hear even one MP lambasting Mrs. Golda Meir's government for having what he called a no-policy, it was depressing to discover the nature of the "fundamental and dramatic" alternative he wanted. This was: bring in a new wave of Jewish mass immigration to offset the increased Arab influx into the conquered territories had brought under Israeli control, increase Israeli settlements, integrate the Arabs in Israeli-occupied territory, cut their economic ties with their own people, shut down all traffic over the Jordan bridges, keep the borders closed and let no more Arabs in. And for good measure sack the principal information officer for not unmasking the enemy's responsibility for the Arab refugee problem and convincing the world of the justice of Israel's attitude.

A remedy on these lines, which would fit well enough into an antique colonialist context, would probably not win general support in Israel. But the feeling of angry, or weary frustration, prickled by Arab terrorist exploits, that produced it, is widespread in the land.

"The plain fact is," said an Israeli journalist at the end of a long discussion, "that the Arabs just don't want us."

But could this ever change? Was it conceivable that an attempt to form a Palestine state, incorporating a start the West Bank of Jordan, would be a possible step towards a settlement? A state forming a new Palestine out of the old, as a confederation with Israel, in which Arab and Jew could learn to live side by side in peace?

To this outsider's question the response of a wise Israeli elder was to recall the story of the Jewish marriage broker who told his client he had, at last found a suitable partner for his lovely daughter.

The young man he had found was healthy, handsome, well-to-do, with splendid prospects, and came of a good family.

"And his name?" asked the father.

"His name," said the marriage broker, "is the Prince of Wales."

"But how?" objected the father, "could I marry my daughter to a non-Jew?"

"Difficult," agreed the broker, "but it is not unknown among our people. There was Esther . . ."

"Well, well, then I agree," said the father.

And the broker, wiping sweat from his brow, sighed, "Well, that's half the deal settled."

Sad Spectacle

Disintegration
Harvard Threat

By MARQUIS CHILDS

THE spectacle of a great institution of light and learning threatened with disintegration is not a pleasant one. For the envious, the bigots, the yahoos, the plight of Harvard University, invaded by the extreme left and torn by dissension and doubt in its every member, may bring a gloating satisfaction.

But if this can happen to Harvard it can happen to other less solid and well-endowed universities and colleges across the country. And if the academic community can be broken up, the soft underbelly of the body politic, as the left wing of Students for a Democratic Society see it—the same tactic of disruption and division can be turned against every order of society.

The test ahead is the authority of the university. Following the explosion in April—the SDS occupation of University Hall, the student strike—the faculty withheld. After a furious debate a resolution was adopted asking that all criminal charges against the arrested students be dropped. Ambiguity about the "blame for the upheaval, the resolution called for an elected committee—10 faculty members and five students—to take responsibility for disciplining the student invaders.

That committee will shortly pronounce judgement on the students who were jailed and fined, the district court in East Cambridge having refused to drop the charges. On the question of punishment—expulsion or dismissal—the university is as deeply divided as it was over the 4 a.m. police action ordered by President Nathan Pusey to clear University Hall. Some 2,500 students out of a total of 6,000 in arts and sciences have signed a petition calling for no punishment.

Faculty members believe the committee can choose to reject any university action by pointing out that the civil courts have already punished the offenders. But other powerful faculty voices believe this will be a final surrender of authority, a precedent leaving Harvard at the mercy of disrupters. Three days after the committee of 15 reports on June 9 will be Harvard's 318th Commencement. One thing is certain—there will be trouble. The degree of disruption may turn on the committee's findings.

A mere demonstration—a mock Commencement—procession aimed at the Vietnam War and Harvard's share in defence contracts—is the minimum. An attempt by SDS to break up the ceremony, with 15,000 participants and families jammed into the Harvard Yard, is not ruled out. It would mean another violent encounter with the Cambridge police who will be on hand in large numbers to keep order.

The more numerous among the older hands believe next fall will see another wave of disruption. The sit-in, in the pessimistic view, is out. The new tactic is guerrilla warfare, aimed at breaking up individual classes in a hit-and-run pattern. With no check on who enters classrooms it will be difficult to frustrate such a tactic.

'Madman of Pyongyang' Holds the Cards

By JOHN AITKEN, from Washington

American propaganda, if one may call it that, has been silent over the shooting down, by North Korean jet fighters, of an EC-121 reconnaissance aircraft, and there is almost a sense of foreboding in Washington.

There have been no attempts by State Department or White House spokesmen to whip up either the degree of public anger that might justify retaliation, nor to reassure the American people that the 31 men aboard the lumbering spy plane died for a worthwhile cause. Nor has there been any public apology from the White House over the discrepancy between President Nixon's non-reaction to the incident and his proud, flag-waving statement ("fourth rate military powers etc") in Miami last August, when he made his acceptance speech to the Republican convention.

Instead, high administration officials have admitted that there is a legitimate difference between campaign rhetoric and the hard facts of running a nation. They have explained that reconnaissance flights must be continued, and the President has made sure that future flights (and, presumably, future voyages such as that of the Pueblo) will be empty protected. He has said that the future is up to the North Koreans.

Il Sung

And, by and large, the American people have swallowed all of this. There have been no "Remember the Pueblo" bumper stickers, no pickets at the White House, nor even any hostile editorials in the nation's major newspapers.

One can read into all of this that even the people — usually quick and emotional in their reactions — have recognized that their country is in serious trouble in Asia and that the solution is neither simple nor available to them.

The question many in Washington now pose is not so much "What next?" but "When?" for it seems inevitable that the Pueblo and EC-121 incidents will soon be repeated.

The fact that an American admiral referred to North Korea's Marshal Kim Il Sung as "that madman in Pyongyang" — supported the more delicately phrased State Department comments about the "unpredictability" of North Koreans — does not detract from the fact that the Americans are stymied.

It appears that North Korea wants to embarrass the U.S. Both attacks were deliberate and presumably calculated risks. Either incident, in peacetime area, perhaps, would have served as ample grounds for a declaration of war. In fact there was much pressure on President Johnson to order military retaliation against North Korea after the Pueblo incident.

But for North Korea to risk war with the United States is less of a risk than it might appear. The North Koreans are already at war with the Americans and they feel that war has been neither lost nor won. There has been a lengthy — if often violated — ceasefire and there is a demilitarized zone, patrolled by 56,000 U.S. troops.

The North Koreans are not unaware of the fact that the U.S. is over-extended in Vietnam, and that neither President Nixon nor the most hawkish of his generals and military advisers has any desire to raise the ante in Korea.

By creating embarrassing incidents for the U.S. and by doing so with impunity they strike at the real root of the unsettled Korean situation — the morale of the people in the south. They flaunt their insults as if to say that 56,000 U.S. troops may patrol the demilitarized zone but they'd best keep their heads down.

By forcing the U.S. to provide air cover for its intelligence operations in the Sea of Japan the North Koreans have made a strong chess move, a move which opens a rat's nest of diplomatic juggling.

That air cover must either come from U.S. aircraft carriers or from air bases in Japan.

As for military retaliation, President Nixon was severely limited in his options, and, surprisingly perhaps, there was very little support for this on Capitol Hill. Had he bombed a North Korean airfield, or attempted to blockade North Korean ports, the North Koreans would very likely have invaded the South and then the U.S. would have been faced with two Asian wars going on simultaneously.

President Nixon understands completely that it was Vietnam that defeated Lyndon Johnson, and not Richard Nixon. He knows that Vietnam could destroy him as well, and that reviving the fighting in Korea would undoubtedly destroy him.

That, I suppose, is one of the weaknesses of an open society. The U.S., and Nixon in particular, has put all its hopes into ending the war in Vietnam.

His commitment to this as well known in Moscow and Pyongyang and Hanoi as it is in America, and with journalists and diplomats from every Iron Curtain nation in Europe maintaining offices in Washington and sending reports to their superiors they understand Nixon's position clearly.

Much has been written about the power of a U.S. president, but this power is like a taxi or a cop — never around when you need it. It's a tenuous thing, a non-ability to use nuclear weapons, and an incapacity to master the art of guerrilla warfare. It is the power to declare war but not the power to levy taxes to pay for it. It is, in many respects, a myth.

It is the power, internationally, of restraint, which the president has used, so far.

And yet it is tremendous power nonetheless. Should the Paris peace talks fall — and they may very well do so — and should there be future Korean incidents as well as resumption of the bombing of North Vietnam, and should there be a fresh outbreak of strife in the Middle East, the U.S. might well find itself placed, eventually, in an untenable position as far as nuclear restraint is concerned.

All in all, the "Madman of Pyongyang" has an enormous and ominous potential for mischief.

Soviet Jews Subjected To Renewed Pressures

By JOHN WILLIAMS, from London

New evidence gathered here indicates that Kremlin-backed pressures are tightening on Jews in the Soviet Union. Soviet Jews number about 3,000,000. They are the world's second largest community, after the United States. Both nations have more Jews than Israel.

Main features of the evidence are: Kremlin-approved publication of a new anti-Jewish book titled Judaism and Zionism, by the widely-dissident author, Trofim Kichko. Five years ago, in response to foreign criticism, the Russians banned further sales of an earlier virulent book by Kichko. Since then, he had been unheard of, and thought to be under control.

The attempted suicide of a Latvian Jewish student, Ilva Rippa, as a protest against Soviet refusal to allow Jews to migrate to Israel. Rippa set himself alight near the Liberty monument in Riga, the Latvian capital. (Once independent, Latvia has been a republic within the Soviet Union since the Red Army invaded in 1940.)

Covered in flames, Rippa staggered through the streets crying, "let us go to Israel!" He was stopped and, the flames smothered, taken to hospital where he is still living.

Then, other Jewish students in Riga smuggled an appeal for help to London. And they demonstrated outside government buildings in Riga, demanding exit permits for Israel.

The Academic Committee of Soviet Jewry meeting in Washington, accused the Soviet regime of being "one of the world's main sources and sponsors" of anti-Jewish publications. The committee called for the suppression of anti-Jewish propaganda, permission for teaching Yiddish to young Jews, and freedom for Jews to leave the Soviet Union if they wish.

Russian Jews have had a varied, but mostly hard history. They were oppressed for centuries under the tsars, allowed to flourish after the 1917 revolution, and hunted down during the Second World War by the invading Germans and their quislings.

Many of the elite of Soviet Jewry were imprisoned or exterminated by Stalin in his last, power-corrupted years.

Stalin's delusions climaxed in the infamous "Doctors' Case" in which he falsely accused Jewish specialists of poisoning him. After Stalin, Soviet Jews were better treated on the whole. Yet the new leaders drew on Russia's deep-seated anti-Semitism when it suited, as in the trials of Jews for economic "crimes" in 1963-64.

Today the picture is confused. Jews are not found in the Soviet diplomatic service, and are very rare in the high ranks of party and government. During the war the Red Army had 50 Jewish generals. So far as is known, there are none now. However, Jews have shone as scientists and scholars, writers and musicians, sometimes winning national accolades.

The cause of the new anti-Jewish move lies in Israel's victory over the Arabs in the Six-Day War in mid-1967. Until then, a few hundred Jews, and their possessions, were allowed to leave for Israel each year. With the Arab defeat this flow stopped, and anti-Israel propaganda started.

Since then, the Russians have blurred the distinction between an Israeli, living in Israel, and a Soviet Jew, who regards himself as a Russian only incidentally Jewish. Possibly he is a Communist Party member as well. It is just this blurring that Kichko seizes upon in his book, accusing Jews of being "cosmopolitan," a snide way of hinting that their loyalties lie outside Russia.

The result is that young Jews band together, in some towns at least, in sudden awareness of their joint heritage. One report says thousands of them want exit permits. And young Jews are attending the few synagogues still open, although many of them are not only non-religious, but atheists. They go, apparently, simply to assert themselves against the pressures.

The Kremlin's problems are real enough. It is anti-Israel for political reasons. It is anti-religion for ideological reasons. And Marxism forbids racial discrimination — after all, Marx himself was Jewish.

How then, the Kremlin asks itself, should it act towards a minority in which race, religion and affinity to Israel sometimes fuse together, and sometimes do not? So far the Soviet leaders have no answer.

'Core Elite' Make All Crucial Decisions

WASPs Control Toronto

UPI, from Toronto

A group of people—white, Anglo-Saxon and Protestant—still make the crucial decisions in Toronto, and non-WASPs who would aspire to join this group aren't getting the warmest of welcomes.

So reports University of Toronto Professor Monty Kelner in a PhD thesis she has just completed after three years of study.

Money isn't the main factor in joining what Prof. Kelner calls Toronto's "core elite." More important are family background, schooling and club memberships.

All these factors are interwoven and, without one or another, the prospective core elite-jointer will have problems. So thoroughly does this informal entry screening process work that only two or three Jews and one Italian can be considered members of the elite.

This is so despite the fact that by 1961 a third of Metropolitan Toronto's roughly 2,000,000 population was non-Anglo-Saxon.

Prof. Kelner says the non-Anglo-Saxons — Italians, Jews, Greeks, Poles, Ukrainians and Germans are the most prominent of the city's ethnic groups — are making headway but in relatively minor business and cultural spheres.

Non-WASPs can't seem to transcend these lesser elites into the higher, core elite, or group of "primary leaders." "This group of primary leaders directs the society and makes the most crucial decisions," Prof. Kelner said.

Prof. Kelner is not too disturbed that Toronto has what amounts to an "establishment." What concerns her is that the doors to this establishment are, often unconsciously, closed to outsiders.

The study points out, for example, the value of membership in certain clubs as a means of making business contacts. Yet, there are non-Anglo-Saxons in these clubs.

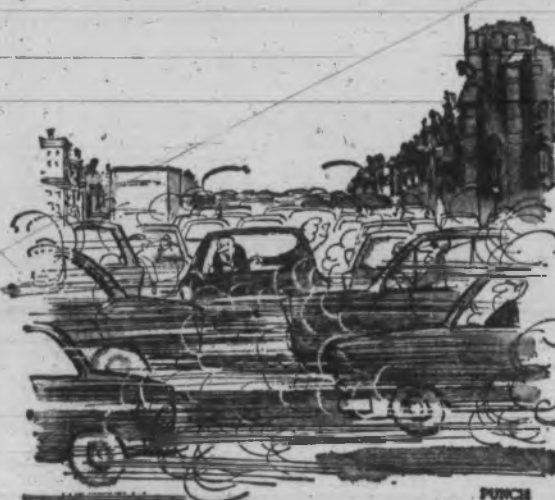

The same all-WASP make-up also seems to apply to the boards of financial institutions which dominate the city's business community. In business, the study showed, the elite keeps its high place because it holds the reins on money sources.

Many ethnic business are forced to take 51-49 positions in companies because they must borrow money from Anglo-Saxon dominated institutions.

The study found that while ethnic businessmen were usually more successful in high-risk businesses such as mining and real estate, it was the Anglo-Saxons who overwhelmingly controlled Canada's 100 largest corporations. Of the 325 directors of the corporations based in Toronto, only 20 had ethnic backgrounds.

"Very well, gentlemen—let's make love."

"You look at the cathedral... I'm busy."

Destroyer Carries 'Burden'

WASHINGTON (AP) — U.S. naval officers say the burden of responsibility to avoid collision normally rests on destroyers rather than the aircraft carriers they escort.

When changing station a destroyer is supposed to avoid crossing the bow of an accompanying carrier and is required to take a wide swinging course to its new position, the officers said in interviews.

CHINA SEA

While saying they did not want to prejudice an investigation, these officers indicated they accept the Australian version of the South China Sea collision Tuesday in which the Australian carrier Melbourne sliced in halves the U.S. destroyer Frank E. Evans. The bow of the Evans sank and 74 American sailors were lost.

The Australians have sent the U.S. Navy a classified account which pictures the Evans as turning one way when she should have turned the other.

SECRET WORD

The secret report also describes the Evans as running under the bow of the Melbourne, sources said.

In a public statement, the Australian navy department has claimed the collision occurred after the Melbourne ordered the Evans, ahead of her in a screen, to change station astern of the carrier.

Unlike the Australians, the U.S. Navy is saying virtually nothing in public about the incident pending the outcome of a joint U.S.-Australian investigation arranged Wednesday.

ONE REASON

One reason for this, sources said, is that the navy department hasn't received a report from the Evans' skipper, Cmdr. A. S. McLemore, or other officers who survived.

FIRST ACCOUNT

In their first official account of the disaster, none of the survivors interviewed reported any prior warning. But naval officials at Pearl Harbor emphasized it did not necessarily mean there was none.

Sage Facts 'Surprising'

WATERLOO, Iowa (UPI) — The sister of the five "fighting Sullivans" killed when their cruiser Juneau was sunk by Japanese shells in the south Pacific in 1942, said Thursday she was "very surprised" the three Sage brothers from Nebraska were allowed to serve aboard U.S. destroyer Evans. The three are presumed dead.

The sister, Genevieve, 50, now Mrs. Murray Davidson of Waterloo, joined the navy Waves the day after the navy commissioned a new destroyer and christened it The Sullivans.

Something as simple as a new Shell air filter can give you 10% better mileage.

We want you to get the best possible mileage from your car. Because mileage is our business.

The right air filter can help.

Your engine needs about 7,500 gallons of air for every gallon of gasoline. If you're driving with a dirty air filter, you're blocking the air flow and wasting gasoline.

We have our own special air filter that exceeds car manufacturers' specifications. And it takes 5 minutes to install.

Result: your engine will run at top efficiency and you'll get better mileage. You could cut your gasoline bill by as much as 10%. (Save $1 for every $10 worth of gasoline.)

Our 32 mileage secrets

You'll get better mileage with a clean air filter, new spark plugs and the right tire pressure. These are three of our 32 mileage secrets.

Your Shell dealer knows them all. He wants everything right with your car when he fills your tank—so Super Shell can really show off.

Super Shell for good mileage

Super Shell is a blend of many ingredients. Five of them will help you to better mileage.

For example, Platformate contains extra-energy petroleum molecules. Extra-energy means extra mileage.

To keep your spark plugs from misfiring and wasting gasoline, we add TCP.

The quicker you start, the less gasoline you use before you get going. That's why we add Butane.

Deposits can build up inside the carburetor and hurt your mileage. Our detergent fights these deposits.

And the Mixed Pentanes help your engine warm up quickly to prevent misfiring, bucking, coughing and wasted fuel.

If you'd like to go farther, the man to see is your Shell dealer. For advice. And for Super Shell.

Municipal Chiefs Answer Ottawa

OTTAWA (CP) — The Canadian Federation of Mayors and Municipalities passed four resolutions Thursday to strengthen municipal response to what many delegates consider an invitation from the federal government to join the senior governments in high-level decision-making.

The main policy resolution was a communication from the convention to the federal and provincial governments that municipalities wish to participate "wherever possible and in any manner" at all future federal-provincial conferences.

A Vancouver resolution passed by the convention asked that the federation petition the governments for an invitation to constitutional conferences.

Another successful resolution, moved by Ald. D. M. Mercer of Burnaby, directed the federation executive to attempt to congregate the executives of provincial municipal associations to form a committee responsible for such municipal representation.

IN OPENING

In opening the conference Tuesday, Prime Minister Trudeau asked delegates to come up with suggestions on what constitutional changes they felt would be necessitated by the increased size and responsibility of Canada's municipalities.

Ald. E. J. Broome of Vancouver said: "It is time some of us stopped talking about levels of government." He asked delegates to remember that municipal governments were just as much authorities in their areas as the so-called senior governments are in theirs.

Mayor Allan O'Brien of Halifax, new federation president, said the federation should first attempt to obtain recognition of municipalities in the constitution. It should then ensure the right to consultation before decisions are made on matters affecting municipalities.

OTHER ISSUES

Finally, in what he called "a more difficult area," it should examine such issues as capital borrowing and the sharing of taxation.

The Federation devoted 15 minutes to the problems of welfare, finally passing a resolution that municipalities be allowed to force recipients to work for their welfare cheques.

Ald. Julia Kimiski of Edmonton supported the motion, saying "beggars can't be choosy."

Prince Charles Admires Executioner Cromwell

LONDON (Reuters) — Prince Charles, the future king, said Thursday he admires Puritan dictator Oliver Cromwell who executed the first King Charles 300 years ago.

The 20-year-old prince, giving his first press interview, said he came to prefer Cromwell, iron-fisted victor in the 17th century civil war, to his foe, the overthrown monarch.

The prince, who one day will be styled King Charles III, said: "Charles I was not entirely splendid and innocent as I had always thought... I admire Cromwell, I must say."

SPOKE OF ROLE

During a 50-minute interview the prince spoke of his future role as king, and his views on student demonstrators.

On his investiture July 1 as Prince of Wales, he said there is more opposition in Wales to it than most people think and rejected a suggestion the traditional ceremony is being opposed by only a small, vocal minority.

The prince said that he might join the armed services after graduating from Cambridge University next year.

He said that if he did join the services he hoped to be posted overseas.

"I hope that if I did go abroad I could combine it with visiting various places and being a sort of ambassador part of the time."

He thought such experience would help him greatly in being king.

Canadian Sales 'Almost Nil Soon'

California Grapes Rapped

LOS ANGELES (LAT) — Canada will halt most of its purchases of California grapes this summer, it was predicted here Thursday by a delegation of 31 political, labor, legal and church leaders from Canada.

At the same time, AFL-CIO leaders in California released results of a study which show the U.S. defence department is shipping eight times more grapes to troops in Vietnam than in any previous year.

The Canadians stopped here en route to Delano, Calif., and the Coachella Valley to get a first-hand report on the strike-boycott being pushed by Cesar Chavez and his AFL-CIO United Farm Workers organizing committee.

Rev. Arch McCurdy of Toronto, representing the 1,500,000-member United Church of Canada, said: "The cause of the farm workers in California has captured the imagination of Canadians, and never before in our history have so many Canadians joined in, or even taken an interest in, a strike taking place in another country."

Natal Route Approved

OTTAWA (CP) — The Commons transport committee Thursday approved a CPR application for a new rail route between the Natal, B.C., coal fields and the new port of Roberts Bank, south of Vancouver.

The application was for construction of a 34-mile branch line from the Natal field north to the existing CPR line, and operating rights on about 40 miles of track owned by three companies between Mission and Roberts Bank.

NEW ROUTE

The application, already approved by the Senate and given second reading in the Commons, would give the company a direct line to the new port from the Natal area which is in the Crownst Pass, straddling the southern British Columbia-Alberta border.

J. E. Paradis, senior solicitor for the company, said the new route is necessary because of long-term contracts signed between Canadian and Japanese steel firms for the sale of high-grade metallurgical coal to Japan.

The rail links between Mission and Roberts Bank now are owned by British Columbia Hydro, Great Northern Railway and the CNR.

The application asks federal government approval for CPR to enter contracts with these companies to operate on the lines and to purchase shares in them.

Lang Boycotts NATO Session

OTTAWA (CP) — Senator Daniel Lang has refused to attend next week's session of the North Atlantic assembly because of Canada's move to reduce its military commitment to NATO.

The Ontario Liberal politician, an influential party figure, is the Canadian representative on the military committee of the assembly, which comprises parliamentarians from NATO countries.

He says Canadian policy is "childishly petulant, amateurish and indeed dangerous." He could not "in all conscience" attend the Brussels meeting because his views were contrary to government policy.

Two months ago, Liberal Senator John Alder, also from Ontario, resigned as chairman of the Canadian NATO Parliamentary Association on the same principle.

Senator Lang told a reporter that Canada should not reduce its NATO forces until it gets a comparable reduction among the opposing Warsaw Pact countries.

He said his views on NATO reflect those widely held in the Liberal party.

A survey of Liberal party people taken by Liberal headquarters showed that the great majority favored some military role for Canada in NATO, he said.

Brush-Off Seen For Monarchy

OTTAWA (CP) — Former prime minister John Diefenbaker says the government is giving the monarchy the brush-off because Prime Minister Trudeau and other ministers will not attend the investiture of Prince Charles as the Prince of Wales at Caernarvon, Wales, July 1.

However, officials said Thursday that Charles S. A. Ritchie, high commissioner in London, is the only Canadian representative invited to the investiture by the earl-marshal, Duke of Norfolk, president of the investiture committee, on command of the Queen.

Diefenbaker said in an interview that the prince is the future King of Canada and that Trudeau and other ministers should be present at the ceremony.

There's Nothing Like Relay Race for Building Hopes—in Vain

Shouts of encouragement break suspense for Larry Rollier, 9, of Hampton Elementary, during 100-yard open relay. Hampton placed second to Doncaster

— Jim Ryan

Excitement High In Schools' Track Meet

Doncaster and Lakehill schools took the lion's share in the ninth annual elementary school track meet Thursday night at the University of Victoria's Centennial stadium.

A crowd of about 3,000 students from Greater Victoria elementary schools cheered themselves hoarse, waved streamers, chanted slogans, and did all but run out onto the track in support of their favorites.

Tension mounted shortly after the races started at 6 p.m.

Runners developed severe cases of the jitters as was shown by a number of false starts.

Teachers became as involved in the events as the students.

Mrs. Margaret Forman, a Grade 6 teacher at Doncaster was so enthusiastic she went alongside the track and ran back and forth coaching all her students in their races. As the presentation of ribbons and announcements were made the crowd roared its approval.

During the boys 11 and under relay race more than the normal groans, screams and cheers came from the crowd when Doncaster dropped the baton.

But Doncaster's final runner, Brian Marsh, picked up the dead baton and streaked down the stretch to a crowd-pleasing win.

Cindy Druce, of Braefoot, set the first record of the meet by running the girls 11-and-under 85-yard dash in 10.6 seconds, down from 10.8 set in 1964.

Monty Pittson, 11, of Wilfrid, followed suit when he set a new record for the boys 11-and-under 85-yard dash. He broke the tape in 10.5 seconds, two tenths better than the 1964 record 10.7 seconds.

Janis Turner of Lakehill set a record in the girls 12-and-under 85-yard dash in a time of 10.4 from 10.7 set in 1967, and was followed by the Glenford's Cheryl Blevins winning the B-girls 12 and under 85-yard dash in 10.5 seconds. The former record was 10.7.

Crop Peaks Early

Strawberry Pickers Required Next Week

Strawberry pickers will be urgently needed next week if a plentiful supply of fresh berries is to reach Victoria stores.

J. D. Holloway, president of the Saanich Fruit Growers Association, said this year's 400-ton crop valued at about $200,000 was ripening quickly and would be nearing its peak next week.

"If we can't get pickers we can't keep the ripe berries picked soon enough to make the fresh berry markets," he said. "There are some fresh local berries on the market but not many."

The hot weather has brought the crop to an early peak.

"Normally the peak of the season is around June 20 when the youngsters are out of school. The lack of pickers is one of the hazards of an early season," he said.

He estimated the peak of this season would arrive around June 12 to 15.

"We might just squeak by. I think some of the kids will be out of school by then," he said.

Mr. Holloway said youngsters about 13 to 14 years old would have no trouble making $4 in a day if they wanted to work at it.

If It's in Native Schools

Saanich Indians For Integration

By NANCY BROWN

School integration between Indians and white people would be a good thing—but it should take place in Indian schools, members of the Saanich Education Association decided Thursday night.

If Indians enter public schools it should only be after establishment of an Indian curriculum. Members of the peninsula Indian bands met to discuss the latest ultimatum from the federal government giving three choices for the future of Indian day schools.

ALTERNATIVES

Alternatives open were to become part of the provincial school system by joining the local school district; to become a member of a parochial school system; or to keep the present day schools, operating under either the federal or provincial government.

However, the meeting was told, there is no parochial school system on Saanich Peninsula, which leaves only two alternatives.

If the Indians decided to remain as a day school, the Indian Affairs department would want to know the reason.

UP TO PEOPLE

Chief Ed Underwood said it was entirely up to the people to make their own decision. "If you want it, it is up to you," he said. "This time you are not being pushed as you have been in the past, with the federal government forcing changes without even consulting the Indian."

"All the same," he warned, "if you want it then you are going to have to have good reasons, and good planning."

100 YEARS

"This school has been open for 100 years, but we don't see our children graduated from here and going on to become doctors, engineers or nurses. If we want the school we must be sure we are offering our children an equal standard of education with the public schools."

While some members felt many Indians aren't yet ready for integration, Arthur Cooper disagreed.

"We're as ready as we'll ever be," he said. "It's the white man who isn't ready, and he will have to learn that we are going to demand equal treatment before we get it."

He wanted to see the Tsartlip day school integrated, but wondered how many white children would attend if the school was opened.

PEOPLE COMPLAIN

"When we go into public schools, people complain that we are lowering standards, so I can't see them sending white children to join us."

Mr. Cooper did not think integration in public schools would work. He cited instances of Indian children being blamed for hassles between white and Indian, where there had been provocation by the white children.

"We have to face the fact that some teachers just don't like Indians," he said.

Association president Mrs. Audrey Sampson said, by delaying integration it might be possible to get some Indian culture and language subjects available in public schools.

"This is an important part of the Canadian heritage to learn about the first people here, and it should be part of the curriculum for the sake of both the white and Indian students," she said.

Although the proposed change-over is due in Sept. 1970, it was decided to ask for an extension to give integration further study. In the meantime, the school should remain as a day school with a board of governors or trustees to form policy.

Caroline Elliot said successful integration into the public school system would be impossible without a change of curriculum.

"Indian children are degraded in Grade One when the class starts to learn about the dirty savages who inhabited the land before the white man came," she said. "When children play cowboys and Indians the children all want to be the cowboy. They shouldn't be ashamed of their past."

One Roof, Three Pools

Future Swim Complex Moves Nearer Reality

A proposal for a new aquatic complex in the $1,600,000 range will be submitted to Victoria council's recreation committee at a meeting probably next week, Ald. Percy Frampton said Thursday.

Chairman of a committee which has been working on plans for the centre for months, Ald. Frampton said that a meeting would be held Thursday after which a report on the final design would be made.

Architect John Di Castri has been working on the latest design for several weeks. An earlier design was submitted to the planning committee but was rejected on the ground that it cost too much.

REACTION AWAITED

The complex will be located in the Central Park area where about $200,000 has been spent acquiring land.

The alderman said Thursday final approval of the design was dependent upon the reaction of the council's recreation committee and city council proper but he thought the concept would be satisfactory.

It is believed to envisage three pools, one T-shaped with a 50-metre stretch comprising the main length and a 25-metre pool forming the crosspiece of the T.

SEATING FOR 900

The complex will contain two other pools, one for familiarization with water and reaching a depth of 15 inches and one for training with a maximum four-foot depth.

All will be housed under geodesic domes and there will be seating accommodation for 900 spectators.

It has been reported that observation windows will be built below the surface in the diving sections to enable coaches to observe trainees under water.

DIVING WELL

The 25-metre pool will have a diving well with three two-metre towers and one two-metre tower. Both pools will be used for competitive and recreational swimming.

Lagging Labor 'Not Hep' to Youth

By DON COLLINS

The aims of today's youth are well ahead of those of the labor movement, but young people face a somewhat bleak future.

These two points were made in interviews and addresses Thursday as 15 delegates from Canada's second largest union gathered in Victoria.

"There is a growing New Left spreading all over the country and we're not hep to it," said Percy Huggett of Toronto, president of the Ontario division of the Canadian Union of Public Employees.

He was referring chiefly to rebelling university students as CUPE's B.C. division began its annual convention at the Empress Hotel.

He said in an interview that "students' thinking is miles ahead of ours."

"We used to come to conventions and call for free education. They are well beyond that and are calling for freedom of choice in education," he said.

Stanley Little of Ottawa, national president of CUPE, took a look at a different side of the question during an address later.

"The outlook for the young people is not too good," he said.

"Your children and mine have little hope of ever building a home or buying one," he said.

And technological change would mean only one chance in four of a youth remaining in one job during his life.

Mr. Little had this to say on other subjects:

● Poverty — "Far too many Canadians are living below the poverty line. The labor movement should be willing and anxious to sit down with any responsible group in our society and look for the answers."

● Labor legislation — "With very few exceptions they're (labor laws) designed to be prohibitive and restrictive."

● Bad conditions — He said it is "sickening" to think of hospital employees earning $1.28 an hour in oil-rich Alberta."

Several of those attending the three-day convention, including Mr. Huggett, have said labor should spend more time thinking of social needs. The subject mentioned most often has been poverty.

Another subject which has come in for discussion concerns the claim that unions are better when big. There is a move afoot to merge many of CUPE's small locals (60 per cent of the locals in B.C. have less than 100 members) and to continue the fight for bargaining on a regional basis.

October Budget

Taxes Passed At Last

OTTAWA (CP) — A number of tax changes announced in last October's budget, including the imposition of a two-per-cent social development tax, finally got Commons approval Thursday.

More than 100 MPs were absent when the vote was called. Ninety-one Liberals voted for the measure, 40 Conservatives, 13 New Democrats and 10 Creditists opposed it.

Standing in the 264-seat Commons: Liberal 154, Conservative 72, NDP 23, Creditist 14, Independent 1.

MAIN TARGET

Most of the opposition fire during the debate was aimed at the social development tax. Canadians have been paying since last Jan. 1. It was called a tax on the poor. Persons making $10,000 annually paid the same maximum of $120 as persons with much higher incomes who were able to pay more.

Creditist Leader Real Caouette, the last speaker before the vote was called, said that the government had not acted honestly in levying the social development tax. He said it had been defeated on a similar measure last year and had then withdrawn the bill and promised not to introduce it again.

Stanley Knowles (NDP—Winnipeg North Centre), in a brief speech, said the tax is intolerable and inequitable.

John Burton (NDP—Regina East) said the tax makes a mockery of Prime Minister Trudeau's concept of a just society.

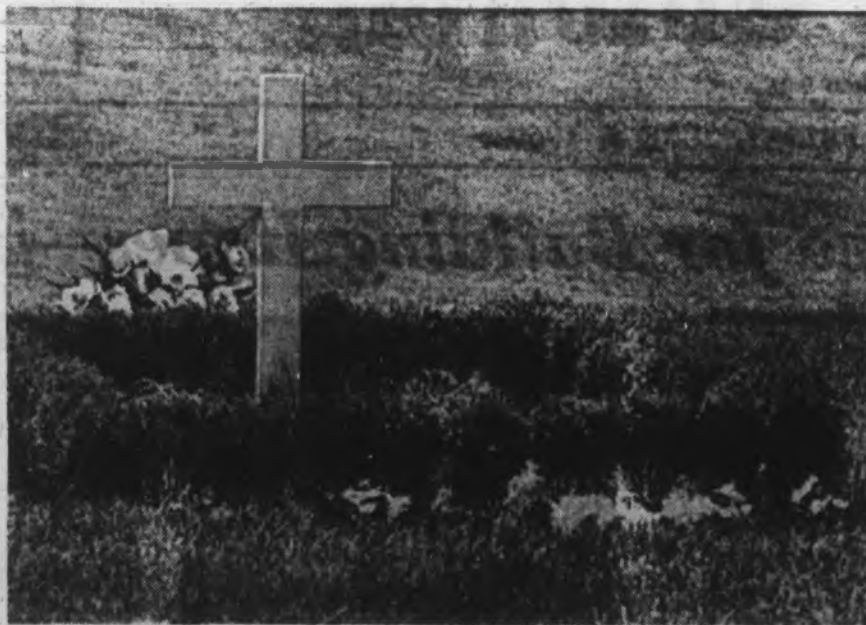

After passage of the tax bill, the House quickly gave final approval to a bill replacing the Export Credits Insurance Corp. with a new export development corporation.

WIDER SCOPE
The new body would have wider scope to make loans or insure payments on Canadian sales abroad. The maximum for outstanding loans would be increased to $600,000,000 from $500,000,000 and the maximum liability for export insurance would be more than doubled to $500,000,000 from $200,000,000.

Three minor amendments were made in the bill before the House gave it third reading, without dissent, and sent it on to the Senate.

'A Crime Which Calls To the Very Heavens'

OTTAWA (CP) — Legalized homosexuality in Canada would be a menace, not only to youth, parents and the family, but to society itself.

CRIME FEARED
"To vote for these amendments is to vote for more crime and violence," he said.

Both senators expressed fears that more liberal abortion laws would lower the value of human life and might lead to removal of other groups from the law's protection.

SOME HOSPITALS
The code amendments, already approved by the Commons, would empower three-member committees to allow therapeutic abortions in approved hospitals where it was certified a mother's life or health was endangered by continued pregnancy.

The bill would also permit homosexual acts between consenting adults in private.

Senator Belisle said legal point, "then step by step it can be brought into question all along the line."

Senator Belisle said it has been established by outstanding medical experts that the fetus after five days is a human being. To kill an innocent human being was wrong.

Debate on the amendments was adjourned.

British Doctors Blamed

Marijuana Being Prescribed

TORONTO (CP) — Marijuana, outlawed by an international treaty on narcotic drugs, is legally getting into the hands of some persons through fashionable British doctors prescribing large amounts of marijuana preparations, says a British scientist.

The preparations are extract of cannabis and tincture of cannabis, which still may be legally prescribed in Britain.

OUTLAWING URGED

Prof. E. G. C. Clarke, professor of chemical toxicology at Britain's Royal Veterinary College, told the fifth international meeting of forensic sciences Thursday that the practice should be outlawed.

"Some fashionable physicians are prescribing it in large amounts to a selected clientele."

He told a discussion group he couldn't say what conditions the doctors prescribe it for.

"For paranoia," interjected Dr. Ann E. Robinson of London Hospital Medical College, co-author with Prof. Clarke of a scientific paper on how to distinguish between legal and illegal marijuana through complicated chemical tests.

"Once it was used extensively for colic in horses," the professor added.

Once the liquid of the two marijuana preparations evaporates only chemical tests can distinguish between the residue and what the drug culture calls grass or pot.

Prof. Clarke said later both marijuana preparations produce the same euphoric effects on the drug user as does the regular weed, which is generally smoked. Asparagus or some other vegetable can be soaked in them to provide "leaves" for the cigarette.

Wills Reconsiders Will Rejoin Expos

Earl Davies in well-stocked Gorge Vale pro shop

Dawn to Dusk He Strives To Be Golf Professional

By KEVAN HULL

When Earl Davies first worked in a golf shop it was a summertime job which lasted daily "from dawn to dusk."

But he had a deep love for the game and the hours were of little consequence. Now he's the head professional at Gorge Vale and the routine hasn't changed. His day is still built around the golf course, only now, he can afford to drive to work.

"Golf has become my whole life," Davies says. "But I feel I can do anything I set my mind to. If I wanted to do something else then I'd just go out and do it."

That isn't likely to happen. The 25-year-old has been in the game since leaving the navy four years ago and considers his appointment in February to succeed Joe Pryke at the Esquimalt course the beginning of the fulfillment of his ambition, not the end.

"We have the most enthusiastic membership that I've ever seen. Check any draw in Victoria and District competitions and at least one-third are from Gorge," he claims.

PLANS TO STUDY

"And that's why I'd like to offer our members something they can't get anywhere else. It will probably take a little longer than I first expected, but one day we will have on of the top pro shops in the country."

"It has to be one of the finest in the business or it's not worth doing it."

As a result, Davies plans to spend his holidays either attending golf business school or travelling to some of the best shops in the United States.

"That's the only way to learn new ideas that can benefit the membership," he says. "Closed circuit television to that players can check their swings and other new ideas are improving the service to golfers."

Business and teaching. Those are the aspects of golf the young pro is dedicating himself to. Not because he isn't a fine golfer as well, but because he gains personal satisfaction from the accomplishments of others.

"I like to teach and, here, if you give a person a lesson, you know they will really work at it. It's most rewarding to see somebody improve and do well in a tournament—almost as satisfying as winning yourself. It brightens both you and them up."

ENTHUSIASTIC MEMBERS

He is happy with the enthusiasm of the members of all ages, feeling that to succeed a club must have a strong program throughout.

In conjunction with that idea he has group sessions planned for both juniors and ladies this summer in hopes of producing even more low-handicap golfers in the already well-stocked club.

It makes for a tough work schedule, but then, Davies is used to that.

A New Westminster product, he attended school in Duncan and learned his golf at the Cowichan Club where he became one of the first juniors to break par.

"I used to run three miles to the golf course," he recalls. "I'd play 72 holes and then run home."

Then came the three-year hitch with the navy during which he toured much of the Pacific Coast of North and South America and has had the thrill of playing golf in the Chilean Andies.

He decided to make a career in golf at the completion of the term and joined the Royal Colwood staff of Bill Court, whom Davies credits with giving him a sound training.

After three years with Court, Davies joined former Victorian Dick Munn at Point Grey where he "had little to do and as a result worked hard on my game."

Fans Flock to Jarry Park Despite String of Losses

MONTREAL (CP)—The advertisement, in large black letters, stood out in the middle of a sports page.

"Ours is the only city in the world," it said, "where you don't lose a fan because you lose a game."

Even now, after Montreal Expos have lost 18 consecutive games, they seem to have trouble losing their fans.

The Expos dropped their 18th straight Wednesday night, 8-3, to San Francisco Giants—but there were 9510 fans at Jarry Park for the game, despite the fact the game was carried on the French-language television network of the CBC.

The loss broke a record of most consecutive losses by an expansion team in its initial season of action. New York Mets held the previous record of 17, set in 1962.

On Tuesday night, when the Expos went down 9-3 to the Giants to tie the record for most straight losses, there were 19,399 hometown fans on hand for the game.

CHEER FOE

Defeat, even under the best of circumstances, often is bitter but love of a team and game can play tricks with the dedicated, such as standing to cheer a foe for contributing to the wrecking of their home club.

"I look about me and just shake my head in astonishment," said Jim Fanning, general manager of the Expos.

Recognition of talent on the opposing side was clearly shown Tuesday night in a long standing ovation which greeted Willie Mays when he stepped up to the plate for the first time in the game.

AVERAGING 15,000

The Expos have been averaging more than 15,000 fans for each home date and only on a few occasions have they shown hostility toward any of the Expos players.

On one occasion, Maury Wills, the shortstop who decided to retire earlier this week, was booed when he came to the plate. He grounded out and the boo rose again.

WAS LATER CHIEFED

But later in the game, Wills made a great play in the field when he stabbed a hard-hit grounder, turned and made the throw to first for the out. The fans rose and gave him a loud cheer and he was greeted with another cheer when he came up to bat the next time around.

BEEF UP PITCHING

In an effort to beef up the pitching staff, the Expos traded Jim (Mudcat) Grant to St. Louis Cardinals Tuesday for Gary Walewsky.

Grant had a 1-6 won-loss record with the Cardinals this year in 1966.

Walewsky is expected to join the Expos in Los Angeles today, where the Expos open a three-game series with the Dodgers as part of a 19-day road trip.

Joe Frazier Lashes Out At 'Phony' Ex-Champion

NEW YORK (AP)—Joe Frazier, who holds a piece of the world heavyweight boxing title, criticized Cassius Clay Thursday as a "big mouth phony" and a "disgrace" and said "I think the public is fed up with all his fussin' and fumin'."

The unbeaten, 25-year-old Philadelphia made the comments in a telephone interview from his training camp at the Concord Hotel at Kamesha Lake, N.Y.

He is preparing for a defense of his six-ounce title against Jerry Quarry of Bellflower, Calif., at Madison Square Garden, June 23.

"All this hollerin' he's doing about not wanting to fight is just a defence," said Frazier.

"He knows I can beat him ... knock him out. I'd like to button his big mouth once and for all. Knock him out and get rid of him. I think the public is fed up with his fussin' and fumin'."

"What kind of a man is this who don't want to fight for his country? If he was in Russia, or some place else, they'd put him against the wall. He walks around like he's one kind of a big hero but he's just a phony, a disgrace."

Clay, 27, is appealing a five-year conviction for refusing induction into the military service. He now is seeking dismissal of the conviction on the grounds that the government used wire-tapped conversations against him.

CFL Sheds Grey Cup Pattern To Please Almost Everyone

WINNIPEG (CP) — The Canadian Football League shed tradition Thursday by setting the venues for the Grey Cup three years in advance.

League commissioner Jake Gaudaur announced following a closed executive meeting at the semi-annual CFL general manager's conference that the 1970 national final will be played in Toronto, switching to Vancouver in 1971 and to Hamilton in 1972.

The game has been awarded on a year-to-year basis in the past. EVERYONE HAPPY The announcement pleased almost everyone concerned, especially Mayor Victor Copps of Hamilton who led a delegation to seek the 1970 final.

"I'm extremely pleased that we were awarded the 1972 Grey Cup because by that time we will be able to stage all the activities connected with the game," the mayor said.

He said everything probably turned out for the best because if Hamilton had been awarded the 1970 game, many of the festivities associated with the event probably would have been held in Toronto.

PLAN IMPROVEMENTS Hamilton, which hasn't staged the Grey Cup since 1935, backed its request with a brief outlining intentions to spend $1,500,000 to increase the seating capacity of Civic Stadium to 35,000 from 29,000.

Vancouver's successful bid falls in neatly with the fact British Columbia marks its centennial in 1971.

The only disappointment was in the Ottawa camp. The home of the Rough Riders had asked for the 1971 game.

This year's final will be played in Montreal and, for the first time, on a Sunday. The date is Nov. 30.

The executive meeting earlier ratified the sale of the Ottawa club to businessman David Loeb of Ottawa.

A committee was appointed to meet the CFL Players' Association which asked for a "get-acquainted" meeting to establish liaison between the league and the association's new executive.

The committee will comprise the two conference presidents, Ian Barclay of Vancouver and Joe Wright of Toronto, and commissioner Gaudaur.

CLAIMS TAMPERING Gaudaur said Thursday that teams in the United States are tampering with CFL players by inducing them to play out their options to move to the United States.

"It would be shoving your head in the sand to say this is not being done," said the commissioner.

"Of course, some players might be instigating this," he said.

Gaudaur was commenting on reports that Bill Symons of Toronto Argonauts, voted Canada's most outstanding player of 1968, had been approached by a U.S. club.

However, both Gaudaur and Lew Hayman, boss of the Argonauts and president of the CFL, denied knowledge of any specific approaches to Symons or of reports that Argo coach Leo Cahill planned to protest to U.S. commissioner Pete Rozelle through Gaudaur.

Gaudaur, speaking generally, said:

"A contract should be lived up to. In the case of a coach, when someone waves a lot of money in front of him, your sympathies are inclined to be with the coach for listening to the proposition.

"The coaching business is a precarious business at the best of times—it's the people making the offers that I am in criticism with."

Gaudaur did not name former coach Jerry Williams of Calgary Stampeders in his remarks, but it was Williams who early this year squirmed through a loophole in his contract and went to Philadelphia Eagles.

Cable a Killer Says Gaudaur

WINNIPEG (CP) — One form of television enriched the Canadian Football League by more than $1,000,000 Thursday while another form continued to threaten to kill the game.

Commissioner Jake Gaudaur reported sale of the 1969-70 television rights to CTV for a record $1,000,000. Last year the rights brought $911,000.

At the same time, the commissioner delivered "a very substantial report" to CFL executives stating that continued inroads into black-out broadcast areas by cable television "will kill us."

"There will be a meeting with national cable systems in the near future to discuss how we can solve this matter," Gaudaur said.

"If we can't protect our blackout areas, the professional game as we know it today will not survive," he said.

The commissioner said player salaries last year, exclusive of playoff payments and other bonuses, hit $2,200,000.

"If we can't protect our blackout, we'll fall to the level of semi-pro or lower," Gaudaur said.

When the CFL sells television rights, it insists on a blackout around the game city, so that football fans in the area of the game must pay their way into the park to see the action.

Cable television companies, however, have been picking the signal out of the air from transmitters outside the blackout areas and sending the game back into the area by cable.

Medalist Ousts 1968 Winner

Dorothy DeGirolamo of Gorge Vale and Joan Lawson of Uplands scored impressive wins Thursday at Glen Meadows to advance to today's final in the Victoria and District Ladies Golf association championship.

Mrs. DeGirolamo, this year's medalist, sidelined clubmate and defending-champion Shirley Jay-Smith, 7 and 6.

Mrs. Lawson had an 8 and 7 margin over Florence Chapman of Royal Colwood in the other semi-final.

One first-flight final berth went to Margaret Fry of Gorge Vale with an extra-hole victory over Eileen Ewing of Royal Colwood. Lil Thirlwell of Uplands earned the other first-flight berth by downing Emma Silverberg of the host club, 2 and 1.

Today's draw: 9 a.m. — Mary Cleland (GV) vs. Lee Steers (GML) (fourth flight); 9:05 — Anne Thomson (RC) vs. Claudia Morawa (U) (third flight); 9:15 — Shylla Meakin (V) vs. Elaine Saunders (GV) (second flight); 9:30 — Margaret Fry (GV) vs. Lil Thirlwell (first flight); 10:00 — Dorothy DeGirolamo (GV) vs. Joan Lawson (U) (championship).

'Prank' Proves Costly for Young Driver

What began as a prank on May 23 ended with $400 in fines and a suspended driver's licence for a 23-year-old Saanich man who appeared Thursday in Central Magistrate's Court.

Saanich police constable Norman Ellison testified that he began chasing Mr. Hawthorne's car when he noticed the accused driving "erratically" about 2:20 a.m. May 24.

Constable Ellison said Mr. Hawthorne drove south on Douglas at approximately 85 miles an hour, turned onto Pinlayson at high speed, swerving to the left side of the road, ran through a stop sign at 50 miles an hour, continued onto George Road at 80 to 85 miles an hour, ran through another stop sign and abandoned the car behind a service station.

The constable said he found six shuffleboard rocks in the empty car which apparently belonged to a local drinking establishment. Mr. Hawthorne was later apprehended at his home. He told Magistrate Ellison that taking the shuffleboard rocks was only a "prank." There was no real reason for it.

He disagreed with Constable Ellison about the speeds he was travelling, and said he had tried to evade the police car because he thought he had made an illegal U-turn.

Magistrate Ostler made no comment except to pronounce the fines and suspension.

David Roblin of 3691 Wascama was sentenced to 20 days in jail for being in care and control of a car while intoxicated. He had been arrested May 23 by a policeman who saw him vomiting from the window of his parked car.

Mr. Roblin testified, "I had no intention of driving that car" but Magistrate Ostler said he doubted this.

The magistrate said it is "inconceivable" that Mr. Roblin would (as he had testified) leave his car parked by the curb for three days, with keys in the dashboard and two partially filled liquor bottles on the floor in front.

Mr. Roblin said he had gone to the car only to get some cigarettes and that the door of the car remained open when he was sick. But Victoria police constable George Leukfield said the door of the car was closed. Mr. Roblin was later given a breathalyzer test and found to have a blood-alcohol reading of .24.

The magistrate said he considered the 20-day sentence "very merciful."

New Radio in Ambulance Transmits Heart Beat

Equipment for transmitting a patient's heart activity from ambulance to hospital by radio signal may go into use sometime this month in Saanich ambulances.

Municipal fire chief Joseph Sutherland said Thursday the equipment would be employed as soon as it arrived later this week or early next week and "the bugs are ironed out."

He said a certain amount of testing had to be done because the project was the first of its kind in Canada.

Financed by a $25,000 federal grant, the device is aimed at providing faster help for victims of heart attack. Transmissions of heart activity go to an oscilloscope in the coronary care unit at Royal Jubilee Hospital.

Piano Apt Example Of Forces Moving Bill

OTTAWA (CP) — A Canadian army officer once shipped home a grand piano from Germany in a commercial plane at government expense, Conservative MP Jack Bigg said Thursday.

The member for the Alberta riding of Pembina disclosed the incident at a meeting of the Commons public accounts committee.

It was to buttress his point for a change in regulations to permit a saving of money on moving bills for the military.

END OF WAR

Bigg, who amplified on the piano incident outside the committee room for reporters, said it occurred in 1945 when Canadians were being repatriated from Europe at the end of the Second World War.

Nobody in the officer's family played the piano, said Bigg, himself a soldier overseas at the time. He declined to give either the name or rank of the officer who shipped the piano.

CHANGE REJECTED

Invited by the committee chairman, Alfred D. Hales (PC—Wellington), to supply more facts to permit an investigation, Bigg said the paper proof of the incident had been destroyed.

The case was raised by Mr. Bigg after Auditor-General Maxwell Henderson, the government's spending watchdog, reported that the military had rejected a public accounts committee recommendation for a change in moving regulations.

The committee felt soldiers should be given the option of a cash allowance totalling 75 per cent of their estimated moving bill rather than have the government pay the whole thing.

The case was raised by Bigg said he did not accept the resistance to the idea. He took a survey and found most servicemen favor a cash allowance.

It would permit servicemen, if they chose, to sell their household goods and buy replacements at their new postings.

Harold Winch (NDP—Vancouver East) said it would be a good time to get this whole question opened up again because of the prospect of wholesale shifts of personnel from abroad because of Canada's planned military reductions in Europe.

Rainstorm Swoops In But Misses Big Fire

ROCKY MOUNTAIN HOUSE (CP) — A brief rainstorm swept through this west-central Alberta foothills community Thursday night but missed an area 16 miles southwest where a 5,000-acre forest fire has burned out of control since mid-Wednesday.

The fire was burning on two fronts, one about 400 yards from a sawmill near where it started about 1 p.m. Wednesday. North winds late Thursday were blowing flames away from the mill.

Lightning which accompanied the rainstorm here, about 45 miles west of Red Deer, started four other fires in the same area. The fire hazard in the tinder-dry forests is rated as extreme. The four fires were quickly wetted down by water bombers.

Government forester Art Peter said that although the fire covers a total area of 5,000 acres, the amount of burned-over timber is about 4,000 acres so far.

Clay's Defence Says Bugging 'Taints It'

FBI Agents Contradict Each Other

HOUSTON (UPI)—Two FBI agents being questioned in federal district court about the wiretapping of former heavyweight champion Cassius Clay's telephone conversations contradicted each other under oath Thursday.

The contradiction may have given Clay's lawyers possible grounds to ask for a reversal of Clay's draft-dodging conviction, five-year prison and $10,000 fine.

BLACK MUSLIM

The FBI men were questioned about whether a summary of a wiretapped conversation between Clay and Black Muslim leader Elijah Muhammad ever got out of the Phoenix, Ariz., FBI office.

FBI special agent Barry Pickett, who spent four years in Phoenix as an FBI clerk, said the summary did not get out of Phoenix. Warren Welsh, an FBI special agent in Louisville, Ky., said he had letters from the FBI's Phoenix office about the wiretap.

"Does this show taint?" reporters asked Charles Morgan of Atlanta, one of Clay's lawyers in the U.S. District Court hearing.

"Of course it does," Morgan replied.

Pickett, 28, now in the Jacksonville, Fla., office of the FBI, testified that as an FBI clerk in Phoenix he eavesdropped eight hours a day, five days a week for four years on Muhammad's telephone conversations.

Clay's lawyers charge the government case against Clay, which convicted him of draft dodging in June, 1967, was tainted by use of evidence obtained from illegal wiretaps.

Oscar Smith, who wrote the letter suggesting Clay not be deferred in the grounds he was a Muslim minister, took the stand for the government. At the time of the letter, Smith was chief of the justice department's conscientious objector division.

YEARS AGO

Smith said he had no knowledge of the wiretapping although he had a full FBI report on Clay. Classified material was not included in the FBI report.

"I requested many years ago classified material not be included in the FBI reports because you cannot make a copy of the report and give it to the defendant," Smith said. "I did not want to see it."

Smith said he had reviewed 4,000 cases since Clay's case but did not know how many involved Black Muslims. He said Clay's race "couldn't possibly" have prejudiced his decision.

SUPREME COURT

The U.S. Supreme Court ordered U.S. District Judge Joe Ingraham to hold a hearing and see whether illegal wiretap testimony was used. The current hearing is over a defence request for a 30-day postponement of the main hearing.

The defence wants 30 days to study the summaries of telephone conversations the FBI listened in on between Clay, Elijah Muhammad, the late Dr. Martin Luther King, Herbert Muhammad, Elijah's son, and John Ali, national secretary of Muslim Temples.

FIFTH CALL

Ingraham looked at a summary of a fifth telephone conversation Clay had, pronounced it a matter of national security and refused to let it be made public.

Sasquatch Footprints?

SQUAMISH (CP) — Another chapter in the search for the legendary Sasquatch may be unfolding near this community 30 miles north of Vancouver.

Three housewives said Thursday a prowler, which has kept the area in fear for the past three weeks, must be the legendary hairy beast supposed to roam B.C. forests.

Mrs. Jack Gratton, who lives in a home overlooking a heavily-wooded area, said the prowler broke into her home last Thursday while she was visiting her next door neighbor.

Mrs. Gratton said she has only had one glimpse of the hairy visitor, a rear view, about 100 yards away, but her boarder, Gordie Gerrier saw it face-to-face one night.

The housewives said their prowler has scratched at the outside windows, tore up the neighboring bush and lurked behind their places at night. RCMP in Squamish, whom the women say are treating the case very lightly, have taken plaster casts of three footprints found at the scene and plan to send them to Vancouver.

Brothers Seeks Change of Mind at Lake Cowichan

Five Trustees Resign

By DONNA CLEMENTS

Education Minister Donald Brothers said Thursday he would try to persuade five members of Lake Cowichan school board, who resigned earlier in the day, to change their minds.

The resignations, including that of chairman Mrs. Lee Budden, came after a special meeting had adjourned.

"I wish to hand in my resignation as of tomorrow (Friday) at 5 p.m.," said Mrs.

Budden. The four other trustees, Bill Thompson, Fred Ozero, Pete Giles and Mrs. Kathryn Sharp followed suit.

TWO STAY

Two trustees remain—William Sutherland, who has been a trustee for about 1½ years and William Komo, a trustee for six months.

The five trustees blamed the attitude of ratepayers who attended a regular meeting Tuesday for their resignations.

Mr. Brothers told the Colonist that he gathered that the resignations were made in the heat of the moment "and on reflection, those who tendered resignations might reconsider. I would certainly do my best to get them to do so."

ASSURANCE GIVEN

Mr. Brothers said if the trustees did not retract their resignations, "I want to assure the ratepayers of Lake Cowichan that they will not be left without some legal school administration."

He said he would be looking into the situation first thing this morning, and possibly would be considering the appointment of a trustee to administer school board affairs until a byelection could be held.

A delegation of more than 35 area residents attended Tuesday's meeting to demand that the board give strike non-teaching employees a settlement.

CAR POOL

Residents accused trustees of making their children "scabs" because they were crossing lines to go to school, and claimed the children were having to clean schools. They also claimed that parents, driving students to school in a car pool, were also "scabs."

A settlement was reached between employees and the board on Wednesday and the employees are back at work.

After she resigned Thursday, Mrs. Budden commented: "We may be working for the taxpayers but we do not have to take that abuse."

"The people did not come here to inquire into what was going on, they just came to yell at us."

'Loffmark Hits At Good Life'

Health Minister Ralph Loffmark was accused Thursday by a hospital union spokesman of "pouring gasoline" on an already "inflammable" labor scene.

Ray McCready, business manager of the Hospital Employees Union, said the minister's proposal to restrain hospital budgets was an unwarranted intrusion by the government into the union's collective bargaining.

He was speaking at a meeting of the St. Joseph's Hospital unit of the union.

"While the premier is promising the public pie-in-the-sky under his good life program, his ministers are attempting to deny hospital workers their share of the good life," he said.

First Rock Band Festival Draws Chemainus Protest

CROFTON — Crofton ratepayers decided Wednesday to tell North Cowichan council that they object to a proposal by MCM Productions for a rock band festival at Puller Lake Asena, Chemainus July 1.

Mrs. Jean Fyfe, president of Chemainus Ratepayers' Association, told the Crofton group that her association had already sent a letter to council urging it to ban the bands.

After some discussion, the Crofton ratepayers agreed to send a letter stressing that they did not want the festival application to be accepted.

The application is to be considered by council Wednesday.

"Chemainus ratepayers feel it would be rather too big for them," said Mrs. Fyfe.

"There are 10 bands involved and includes B.C. and the northern states. The festival will be sponsored by a Vancouver radio station and there will be dancing from either noon to midnight or 2 p.m. to midnight."

"They said they would sponsor security if necessary — life-guards and cleanup crew. We felt it would be too big for us and there are reports that 6,000 hippies could come — not to mention our kids."

Commenting on a reference to "the first Vancouver Island rock festival," Mrs. Fyfe said: "We could be looking at the arena being tied up every July 1. I am opposed to it — I am speaking for myself and I am going to write a letter to council personally."

During their discussions, the ratepayers frequently referred to a similar four-day festival at Aldergrove which they felt was a precedent as to what could happen to Chemainus and surrounding areas if the application were accepted.

The said that although Aldergrove merchants did $16,000 worth of business, it cost them between $15,000 and $20,000 in damage "they'll never get back."

"I think it is wrong to bring this up at a ratepayers meeting like this," said Ald. Gerry Smith of North Cowichan. "It is going to make the papers and will be much more advertised."

Plane Missing In Aleutians

FAIRBANKS, Alaska (UPI)—A four-engine Strategic Air Command plane with 19 servicemen aboard was missing Thursday and feared down in the Bering Sea near the western end of the Aleutian Island chain.

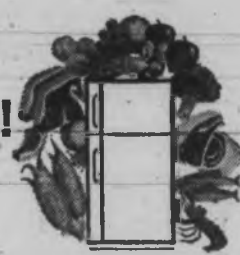

The plane, a reconnaissance version of the Boeing 707, disappeared on a routine 1,700-mile flight from Shemya, a one-by-three-mile speck of land at the end of the Aleutians, to Eielson AFB near Fairbanks. A massive air search was ordered.

Narrow Escape A Shock

DELTA (UPI)—Three brothers were recovering from a shocking experience here Thursday.

The trio — Joseph, David and Leonard Houle — narrowly escaped death late Wednesday when 235,000 volts from a R.C. Hydro distributor line passed through their bodies.

"We should have been dead, I figure. It really was a miracle," said 17-year-old Joseph. He suffered only a sore hip when the jolt knocked him off a wooden crate.

His brothers, 12-year-old David and Leonard 13, were reported in satisfactory condition with first and second-degree burns in Royal Columbian hospital.

The three were erecting a 24-foot iron pole for a clothes line when it touched low-hanging electrical wires strung across the rear of the Houle property.

The two-year-old Houle home appeared to have suffered more damage from the incident than any of the boys.

The entire electrical and telephone wiring in the home was burned out, a gutter drain pipe was charred and the shock cracked part of the house exterior.

If you ask her, Grace Hartman will tell you about her husband and her two grown sons, and how she likes to make her own clothes.

At such times you are talking to Grace Hartman — mother, wife, everyday woman.

But if you ask her about the state of organized labor she will thrust her hands deep in her coat pockets, fix you with a penetrating stare and tell you in no uncertain terms what she thinks should be done.

And now you are talking to Grace Hartman — highest ranked woman in the Canadian labor movement, determined, confident.

Grace, who is secretary-treasurer of the 120,000-member Canadian Union of Public Employees is in Victoria for the annual convention of the British Columbia division.

Her climb to one of the top offices in the country's second biggest union has been quick. She became a unionist only 13 years ago and hasn't been fully accepted by all of her male counterparts.

***

Her awareness of this is evident when she is asked how a woman attains such a position in the labor movement.

"You get there the same as anyone else," she says. "But she will also admit it had something to do with tenacity and determination to be part of this union."

Grace became a rank-and-file member of the old NUPE (National Union of Public Employees) when she was hired as a secretary for the planning board in North York, Toronto's largest suburb. Within the first year she became an executive member of her local and soon after that she was elected president. A job she held eight years.

Monday to Friday hard at work in her Ottawa office (when she isn't making special trips) and home to her family in Toronto for the weekend — maybe.

"Often — like this coming weekend, for instance — I have to be away from home on labor business."

Home is where her husband Joseph, a sheetmetal worker and ardent unionist, lives with Grace and one of their sons.

Did her family resent her spectacular flight in the world of labor?

"Taking the job was a family decision. You see, I have a husband who not only preaches equality, but practices it."

Union leaders may call for equal pay and working rights for women, but Grace says she senses the resentment some of them have for her.

"Many of them figure this is an invasion into what was a man's world," she says.

"But the thing is, it is not a man's world anymore. Women make up one-third of the labor force."

***

"And I don't think men realize women can bring to the labor movement a type of militancy — the men don't expect."

It is the women, she suggests, who are often the most militant members of a picket line.

She has attended a number of international conferences and was on the committee responsible for bringing about the royal commission on the status of women.

***

"What I have done, I haven't done because of any particular ambition," she says, "but because I have seen so many things the trade labor movement isn't doing, but should be doing."

In this category she lists the need to struggle for world peace and fight poverty.

"We're almost establishing an elite among the workers," she says of today's unionists. "They have decent homes, cottages, boats and they can escape the city on the weekend."

"There isn't always time left over for them to think of the less fortunate people of the world. There has to be time taken to do something for all those other people."

Grace, who likes to collect rocks and to make all her own clothing, says women are more ready to accept her in her present role than are some of the male labor leaders.

"But there is always that

Do-It-Yourself Divorce Costs Less Than $50

WINNIPEG (CP) —

Daunted by formidable legal fees, 28-year-old Joan MacTavish bought a paperback copy of the Divorce Act "and just decided to do it myself."

Her divorce—she was granted a decree nisi in Court of Queen's Bench—cost her less than $50.

She had planned having her lawyer handle the action for her, but changed her mind.

"I asked him one day how much he starts at and he said $600 or $700, plus disbursements."

Mrs. MacTavish and another woman were thought to be the first women here to take their own divorce cases to court. A man did it for the first time last month.

After spending 35 cents for the Divorce Act, she spent $1 for a seven-sheet set of divorce petition papers. A copy of the petition was sent to her husband, who lives in another province, and the original was filed in the court office for a fee of $30.

"I did all the typing out on the forms during my lunch hour."

Pearls Are Back

By EUGENIA SHEPPARD

NEW YORK — Almost every woman with worthwhile pearls is taking them to her jeweler for first aid. He is busy putting two or three strands together, or inserting diamond rondels between the beads to make a long rope.

Thirty inches plus a clip or a tassel is the minimum for the right look, according to David Webb, and, with the price of pearls what it is, only the most pampered women can hope for more.

In costume jewelry the ropes will be five to 10 feet long by fall.

***

"Pearls are back, bang-bang," says David Webb. "I knew it was coming, but it never occurred to me it would happen so fast."

"If pearls aren't long, they must be very short like a dog collar around the throat," jeweler Webb goes on, "and I only really like the pearls if they're big as lima beans."

***

Geoffrey Beene slit dresses to the waistline, and filled in his dress fronts completely with bibs of big beads. He used long ropes, wound twice around the throat and then hanging to below the waist.

Oscar de la Renta liked 10-strand dog collars of enormous pearls that started right below the chin and completely camouflaged the throat.

And Rose Kirk 'Had a Ball'

LIVERPOOL, England (AP)—After 28 years of marriage, Rose Kirk finally rebelled against the ritual of waving goodbye to her sailor husband.

This time she saw him aboard, and instead of going home as usual, sneaked up the gangplank of the 25,000-ton liner Empress of England.

Once at sea she sent word to her husband Albert, a greaser in the engine room. Albert sent word up to the captain he had a stowaway aboard.

In court Wednesday, back from the 17-day round trip to Montreal, Mrs. Kirk was fined $10 ($26) and paid up gladly. "I had a ball," she said.

"For years I have put up with seeing my husband only once every 17 days when the

LANDERS

Dear Ann Landers: It's obvious you are on the first marriage and so is your husband. Otherwise you would not have given that stupid answer to the woman who asked, "How much time does a man owe his ex-wife?" (Your reply: "As much time as he wants to give her" was terrible.)

Only a second wife can know how conviving a first wife can be. My husband's ex is an authentic genius at keeping him involved in her life. The children are the perfect fells and she uses them most effectively by playing on his guilt.

Here's how it works: Wife One subtly suggests that it would be "nice" if Daddy saw Lucy in the school pageant. And, of course, Johnny would just love it if Daddy watched him play Little League baseball. Naturally, Mary would be thrilled if Daddy came to her piano recital. The ex-wife goes to every one of these events, you can be sure.

My husband is expected to be present at birthday parties, confirmations, graduations, tonsilleotomies, appendectomies, bone-sets and tooth extractions. He is notified immediately of any and all accidents. (Falling off a bike is an accident.)

I wonder what these women would do if their former husbands were dead, or living in a foreign country? They'd manage, wouldn't they? Please change your advice. Life is rough enough for a second wife without a sock in the jaw from Ann Landers. — S.T.A.

Dear S.T.A.: You missed the point, dearie — as did hundreds of other second wives who wrote to complain. I still say it's up to the husband to decide how much time he wants to devote to his first family. If No. 2 wife is wise she'll accept his decision because in the final analysis he's going to do what he wants, regardless. Any show of resentment on her part will be interpreted as jealousy and she winds up looking like a shrew.

A man may be able to divorce himself from a wife but most men cannot divorce themselves from their children—if they're decent, that is.

Dear Ann Landers: I have never seen my problem in

Ottawa Chips In for Trail Flood

TRAIL, B.C. (CP)—The federal government announced today it will contribute $200,000 to the relief fund set up after a sudden flood ripped through the downtown area April 23.

The figure, announced by Works Minister Art Laing in a telephone call to Mayor F. E. De Vito, does not include $50,000 already given to repair a Columbia River wall that had to be blasted open.

The provincial government has given $700,000 and more than $100,000 has been raised in donations from other centres, private donations and charity canvasses.

The British Columbia government and the city are negotiating for further financial contributions for damage to city-owned property. Provincial highways also were damaged.

Damage to private houses and loss to homeowners and businessmen was assessed at about $1,200,000. Total damage in the flood was listed at about $2,000,000.

In Victoria, Education Minister Donald Brothers, who is MLA for Rossland-Trail, said he was glad to hear they have made a contribution but would not comment on the amount of the contribution.

"Now is the time, before another disaster occurs, to establish a federal-provincial formula to assist disaster areas," he said.

Mr. Brothers said that at the time of the disaster Premier W. A. C. Bennett had asked for such a "national formula" and indicated the province would like to see the federal government pay 40 per cent of the bill with the provinces picking up the remainder.

In 1964 when a tidal wave hit

the Port Alberni area on Vancouver Island, causing damage estimated at $1,500,000, the provincial government contributed $800,000 and the federal government $250,000.

Premier Bennett said he had "no comment" on the federal contribution.

Keenleyside Claims Hydro Fair

VANCOUVER (CP)—British Columbia Hydro and Power Authority has been both fair and generous in handling land expropriations, Dr. Hugh Keenleyside, co-chairman of the company said. Speaking to the Men's Canadian Club, Dr. Keenleyside asked, "is it reasonable to pay an extra $100,000 to re-route a line around a scenic area?"

"Our local representatives have carried out instructions to be fair and generous . . . but how do you pay the price to meet the psychological needs of someone who has been living in the area for perhaps 30 years and does not want to change?" Dr. Keenleyside asked.

Contact Lenses

What do they cost? What are they made of? Can they be worn all the time? More people are interested in and more people are wearing Contact Lenses than ever before, consequently we are asked many questions every day about these miracles of plastic. We have prepared a pamphlet which answers most of the questions you might ask. It is free and we would be glad to send you one.

Our local representatives have carried out instructions to be fair and generous . . . but how do you pay the price to meet the psychological needs of someone who has been living in the area for perhaps 30 years and does not want to change?" Dr. Keenleyside asked.

Top and Leave

One question I get thrown at me pretty often these days is whether the lawn mowings should be raked up or left lying on the lawn. Seems to me the answer depends on how often you mow.

As I mentioned a few days ago, I am a great believer in frequent mowing, for I think the grass is healthier and thickens up better when only the tips of the blades are removed in mowing.

Consequently, I mow twice a week, and with the mower set to cut fairly high at that. These mowings are very fine and small, filtering easily down between the blades of grass to reach the soil. Here they are allowed to remain, acting as a mulch to keep the roots cool and moist, and rotting down eventually to return their nutrients to the soil.

My rotary power mower is of the wind turned type, with the whirling blade acting as a propeller to blow these fine mowings out the port so they are distributed evenly over the lawn. Some of the older mowers leave their mowings in thick windrows, which isn't good for the grass.

As long as I can keep up this twice-a-week mowing routine, I never put the rake to the grass except for the lawn's annual spring cleaning and raking up leaves in the fall. When I have been out of town, or if for any other reason mowing is delayed and the grass gets too long, these heavy, long mowings are removed, for they tend to smother the grass.

Did you ever wonder what happens to all that expensive lawn fertilizer you put down last spring? A small proportion of it is leached away into the subsoil, of course, but by far the greatest part is taken up into the grass leaves. This is why I find it so hard to understand why so many folks burn their mowings or put them out in the garbage. That fertilizer cost good money, and it is still there—in the mowings—and I can't see any point in throwing it away.

If you save your mowings, more power to you, but I don't think it is a good idea to pile them in a heap all by themselves. A heap of lawn mowings with nothing else mixed in is a stinky, smelly affair, and the end product isn't much good for anything.

Grass is a grand speeder-upper, though, and when mixed with tree leaves, kitchen wastes, potato peelings, carrot tops, pea vines and the like, it will hasten the rotting down of the tougher fibres, making a compost which is not only rich in nutrients, but also has the necessary bulkiness for improving the texture of the soil.

Fluffy dried lawn mowings are useful for mulching, too, spreading them on the soil surface between plants to keep down weeds and conserve soil moisture. And don't think their nutrients are wasted when the mowings are left on top rather than being dug in.

After all, nature does no digging, and this is her method of returning nutrients to the soil—she scatters her leaves and other wastes on the surface. The mulch rots down eventually, and some is pulled into the soil by earthworms, which proliferate under such cool, moist conditions.

Tomato plants particularly benefit from a surface mulch over their roots, but mowings from a lawn which has been treated with weedkiller must be used with caution.

Spread such mowings out in the sun to dry thoroughly, and before using them near tomatoes, sniff them to make sure they are not tainted with 2, 4-D.

Tomatoes are extremely sensitive to weedkiller fumes, and the leaves will start curling and becoming distorted if even a faint whiff of the stuff is around.

A Whole Day Gained

Everyone has had the sense of a day lost; simply vanished from the calendar. You wake up on Monday thinking it is Sunday.

It's a dreadful feeling, as if you had grown two days older in 24 hours. A day has blown away, uncounted, and been lost forever in the void, or wherever time goes.

It is like that device in the old movies, where the wind blows the pages off a calendar, to indicate the passage of time.

But recently I got one day back. It was a transcendental experience. I had taken two weeks vacation to get some home work done. I had been working hard; so hard, apparently, that I thought it had taken me three days to do what I had actually done in two.

I woke up on Wednesday, thinking it was Thursday, a day on which I was committed to several chores. It was not a feeling that would go away. Every nerve and cell said it was Thursday.

The clock radio went on at 6 a.m. and I lay there listening to the news and weather, contemplating the busy day ahead. Then I heard the announcer say—

"The temperature this Wednesday morning . . ."

Funny, I thought, this announcer telling thousands of half-awake people it was the wrong day. What havoc that might cause in people's lives!

I got up and made coffee and dressed. When my wife got up I told her about the announcer's error.

"Well, it is Wednesday," she said.

"No, it's Thursday."

She looked at me steadily. "It's Wednesday."

I got the paper off the doorstep and looked at the date: Wednesday. Nothing else would have convinced me.

My mood changed. The day's burdens lifted from my shoulders like big dark birds and flew away. It was exhilarating. I was young. I was free. Life for once had relented and given me a whole day back.

I had managed to get off time's non-stop train at a pleasant station in the country, with my ticket stamped for a 24-hour layover. The pressure of time at my back, pushing me through the week like a wind, was gone.

What to do with this golden day? I set myself no goals. I saw my wife off to work. There is always a twinge of pleasure in watching someone else trot off to work.

I had a leisurely breakfast, savoring each bite. I fed the goldfish and the dogs and even the cats. I took a walk around the neighborhood, stopping to talk to dogs and say hello to people in yards.

I read deep into a long novel. It was time for lunch. I ate on the patio, watching the birds in the fountain. I thought of taking a nap, but I didn't want to give up a moment of this unexpected day. So I went for a drive.

When my wife came home I made highballs and we sat on the patio, bathed in the reddening sunlight. Finally she went into start dinner and I stayed out, watching the day end. The sun sank behind the old tree and then was gone.

The next day was Thursday.

Saltzman in Food

LONDON (NANA) — There are more interesting restaurants in London than in Paris, New York, Chicago, Rome or Hollywood. And Harry Saltzman, better known for his discoveries of Michael Caine and Sean Connery, is part owner of the latest "eating club." The annual subscription to most of these establishments is small but it does keep the place a bit harder to get into and you know how that makes people want to get in. Saltzman invited me to dinner. Among the "exclusive" diners were director Tony Richardson with a clinging brunette, and Carl Foreman and wife Eve with some of the top Columbia Studio brass.

"With all you have to do," I asked Harry Saltzman, "why a restaurant?" "It's a hobby," said Harry who loves food. "This used to be Sir Oswald Mosley's house. He had it in 1934," he informed me. Later it was the River Club Casino. Gambling is a little less popular than it used to be here and the Mafia did not bid against the film producer when he bought the lease. He has a few more weeks with the sixth—the latest—James Bond film, On Her Majesty's Secret Service, then plunges into a musical called, Tomorrow.

Remembering the problems he has with Connery, I wondered whether the new 007, George Lazenby, was as difficult as had been reported. Harry smiled. He has been smiling all the way to the bank for the past 10 years now. "It's only that George wants the biggest car and the tallest chauffeur because I'm no longer George Lazenby," he says. "You made me James Bond." The film opens December 18 in theatres all over the world and take my word for it, George will be hailed as a new star on December 19."

The next Bond will be either Diamonds Are Forever or The Man with the Golden Arm. "Then," said Saltzman with great pride, "I'll produce The Dancer with Nureyev playing the greatest dancer of our era, Nijinsky. He started dancing in Russia in 1904. He died in France in 1950. It's like the most real, modern story of sex and greed—the people who exploited him."

Harry's Battle of Britain will be released on the day it started, September 15. It cost $14 million. Would he like to return to living and working in the U.S.? He didn't think so. He has a beautiful home in London's Mayfair. A lovely country place in Pinewood with a heated indoor swimming pool, a beautiful French wife and three small children. "And I love London. This is the centre of the art world." Art in Harry's book includes film-making.

Mystery Within Us

Let me ask a simple, even a dumb, question of all my scientific friends — my friends in neurology and physiology and chemistry and biological physics.

If it is true, and it is, that the cells in the human body are constantly changing, so that about every seven years we are composed of utterly new cells — then what accounts for the "continuity" in a personality? How can we call him the "same" person he was seven years ago?

We could say that the continuity persists in the "brain," but the brain changes along with the rest of the body, sloughing off old cells and taking on new ones. How does the new brain know who it is, and how does the cortex "remember" its identity under these conditions?

Take a coat. Suppose each week it tore and we replaced with a patch, until finally it was a coat entirely made up of these patches. Would it still be the "same" coat? And at what time, at what particular patching, would it change from the "old" coat to a new and different one?

It is plain to see that a garment undergoing these constant changes, so that every seven years it was made up entirely of new material, could not be called the same garment you originally bought — so in what way is the person the same person he was seven years ago?

Yet we know he is. Except for certain differences that experience and aging make on him, he looks the same, talks the same, thinks the same, feels the same, identifies himself as the same entity.

Obviously, there is something "in" him that retains its identity regardless of the molecular and chemical changes in every part of the tissue and nerves, and all the synapses of the neurons.

Now, we know that the cells somehow "replicate" themselves. That is, if the liver is damaged, and no treatment is done to it, a new cell coming into that region of the liver will be damaged in exactly the same way as its predecessor. But we don't know why, or exactly how. And we are aware that some of these pathologies will spontaneously remit themselves — including cancerous growth.

But if every cell is constantly changing, and eventually dying, in the body, how can one believe that what we call the "identity" of a creature is a material, physical thing consisting merely of biological and chemical processes?

To me, this old-fashioned mechanistic view is as superstitious and obsolete as the medieval belief in the "four humors."

Thus, the "personality" or the "psyche" or the "mind," call it what you will, of a person, is something quite other, and different, from the mere arrangement and chromosomes of the body — something beyond these, a unifying and identifying element we should not hesitate to call "spirit."

OTTAWA (CP) — Fifteen years of intensive research shows there is no absolute proof that cigarette-smoking is a cause of lung or heart disease, spokesmen for the tobacco industry told a Parliamentary committee Thursday.

Paul Pare, president of Imperial Tobacco Co. of Canada Ltd., also told the Commons health committee that outlawing cigarette advertising would take the competitive life out of the industry but not reduce smoking.

THREE REPRESENTATIVES
Pare appeared with representatives of three other firms — Macdonald Tobacco Inc., Rothmans of Pall Mall Canada Ltd., and Benson and Hedges Canada Ltd. — at a 90-minute meeting.

It was the first and apparently the only committee session at which the tobacco firms are being questioned in the Parliamentary study of anti-smoking bills introduced in the Commons.

Pare, smoking a cigarette, said the four firms compete with vigorous advertising campaigns to get smokers to switch brands. But advertising is not directed at young people to encourage them to start smoking.

LIKE DRIVING
He told Grace MacInnis (NDP — Vancouver-Kingsway) that he would not want his 10-year-old son to smoke any more than he would want him to drive a car or drink liquor.
David M. Stewart, president of Macdonald Tobacco, said that when he was a boy in school in Ottawa he was strapped by school authorities for smoking. But today's schools won't exert that kind of discipline, he added.

Pare said the anti-smoking campaign is based mainly on propaganda supported by statistical evidence that cigarettes might contribute to heart disease or lung cancer. But there is no medical proof.

He said some scientists have declared that the indictment of tobacco is not scientifically sound. Others would be willing to make the same assertion if they were permitted to do so by their superiors.

Committee Chairman Gaston Isabella (L-Hull), a medical doctor, said he would discuss calling health and welfare department officials to explain an incident reported by Mr. Pare. The tobacco company president said the department phoned the university represented by one witness at an earlier session to ascertain whether the witness spoke for the university or only on his own behalf. The university receives research grants from the department.

The government's periodic listing of the tar and nicotine content of cigarette brands was assumed by the public to show that tar and nicotine in cigarettes were the causes of disease. No such claim for the listing is made by the government, Mr. Pare said.

Vain Trip to Trudeau Ends Canadian Bed-In

TORONTO (UPI) — Beatle John Lennon was to leave here by air for London Thursday night, his well-publicized, 11-day Canadian stay at an end.

Lennon, his wife Yoko, her five-year-old daughter Kyoko and three others in the Lennon party were to board an Air Canada flight taking off for London at 9:05 EDT.

The 27-year-old member of the world's most famous singing group ended his Canada stay by officially withdrawing his application to be admitted to the country at a hearing Thursday afternoon at Toronto International Airport.

The hearing, originally scheduled for May 26 but delayed at Lennon's request, was to determine his admissibility to Canada. Canadian immigration officials presumably questioned Lennon's admissibility because of his conviction last November in London on a marijuana possession charge.

On Tuesday, Lennon and Yoko drove to Ottawa to see Prime Minister Trudeau.

They drove right up to the front door of the prime minister's residence but Trudeau was not there. Only a red-uniformed Mountie, standing on guard, was in evidence. Lennon left some lilacs and a note for Trudeau with the Mountie.

Earlier in his visit, Lennon said he wanted to give the prime minister some acorns to plant for peace. Trudeau, asked about Lennon, said the song-writing Beatle was a "good poet."

WINNIPEG (CP)—About 1,000 supermarket employees voted to slow operations with a work-to-rule campaign in sympathy with locked-out British Columbia workers.

Former Playgirl Reminisces:

We're All Alone Anyway

LONDON (UPI)—Christine Keeler, the centre of the Profumo scandal that rocked the British government in 1963, made a surprise appearance Thursday at a press reception for American movie star Steve McQueen.

Miss Keeler, 27, said she has been writing a book that will tell the whole story of how she felt during the scandals which cost John Profumo his post as war minister because he lied to Parliament about his relationship with her.

"It's the whole story. It's how I feel now. It's how I saw myself. Now I just see myself as a person whereas before I was just a sort of everybody else's person," the former playgirl said.

"I think I was terribly mixed up until now. What has happened to me has taken a long time to get over. In a way it's made me a better person than I would have been," she said.

"I think we're all alone anyway. That's one thing I've learned to live with," she said. Miss Keeler, wearing a wrap around blue minidress, was brought to the press reception at a London hotel by a writer.

McQueen said when asked if he had heard of Miss Keeler. "Yes, I didn't know she was here. I'm sure she's a very charming lady."

McQueen is visiting London to prepare for several film productions. He said he will be doing more producing and less acting in the future.

Asked how she spent the time since she dropped from notoriety, Miss Keeler said, "I go to the countryside a lot. I just sort of mess around in general," she said.

The other key figures in the Profumo scandal are also keeping busy. Profumo himself is working for a settlement for the down and out in London's east end slums.

Christine Keeler's former friend Mandy Rice-Davies is married and running a nightclub in Israel. Capt. Eugene Ivanov, the former Russian military attaché who was involved with Miss Keeler at the same time as Profumo, was recalled to Moscow and has not been heard of since.

Scottish Remember

Veterans' Services, March Past Tonight

Today is a day to remember for the Canadian Scottish Regiment (Princess Mary's) and veterans of the D-Day landing. It was 25 years ago that the 1st Battalion, the Canadian Scottish Regiment, stormed the beaches of Normandy. At 8 p.m. today at the legislative buildings, that day will be commemorated.

ALL VETERANS

Taking part in the commemoration will be all members of the regimental family and the regimental association. This includes not only veterans of June 6 but also 16th Battalion veterans, veterans of all Second World War battalions and all past and present serving members.

The serving battalion will hold a special D-Day retreat ceremony on the lawn of the legislative buildings under the command of Lt. Col. G. M. Urquhart. By invitation the veterans will form up under Lt. Col. D. R. Crofton with C. J. Smith acting as company sergeant-major.

Lt. Gov. John R. Nicholson, honorary colonel of the Canadian Scottish, will inspect the parade accompanied by the honorary lieutenant-colonel, Lt. Col. W. Rae.

After the inspection, Col. Nicholson's party will be joined by Brig. F. N. Cabellu in front of the Empress Hotel for the march past which will include Maj. Gen. George Pearkes. Brig. Cabellu led the 1st Battalion of the Canadian Scottish onto the beaches 25 years ago at Courseulles-sur-Mer.

The Queen's color and the regimental color will be marched on parade. The battle honors from both wars appear on the regimental color, among them, that of the Normandy landing.

As part of the 7th Infantry Brigade the 1st Battalion served alongside the Royal Winnipeg Rifles and the Regina Rifles regiment. Veterans from both these battalions will appear on parade.

The regiment will hold its annual Spring Ball, this year called the D-Day Ball, in the Bay Street Armory Saturday at 9 p.m. There will be a drum-head church service in Pioneer Square at 12:15 p.m. Sunday.

D-Day Recalled

Beachhead Torches Lit In Memory of Canadians

CAEN, France (CP)—Ceremonies marking the 25th anniversary of the invasion of Normandy got under way Thursday with three short ceremonies held at war cemeteries on the north shore of France.

At Bretteville-sur-Laize, General Guy Simonds, who commanded the Second Canadian Corps, which included the Third Canadian Division, at the time of the invasion, and Lt. Col. D. V. Currie of the South Alberta Regiment and the only Canadian to win the Victoria Cross in the Normandy invasion, placed a wreath at the tomb of the Unknown Soldier.

FLAMES LIT

At Bernieres, Col. Redmond Roche, who commanded the First Regiment of Maisonneuve, and Senator William Benedictson lit a flame on the beach where the Canadians landed June 6, 1944.

Similar flames were lit by representatives of the United States and Britain on other beaches.

At Bayeux, another wreath was placed by Senator C. A. O'Leary and Col. Jack Marshall at the foot of a monument erected by France honoring soldiers who were killed but whose bodies were never found.

During the afternoon, Gen. Simonds, on behalf of the Canadian government, placed a wreath at an American war cemetery at St. Laurent.

Lt. Col. Currie now is sergeant of arms at the House of Commons. Col. Roche, a sessions court judge in Montreal, attended the ceremonies as vice-president of the Canadian Legion.

Also at the Bretteville ceremony were Air Commodore John Fauquier of Toronto representing the air force, and G. A. Percy Smith, of Newcastle, N.B., a Liberal backbencher in the House of Commons for Northumberland-Miramichi.

Also attending the ceremonies at Bernieres were Keith Butler, vice-president of the National Council of the Department of Veterans' Affairs of Canada; Brigadier D. G. Cunningham, of Kingston, Ont., who commanded the 9th Canadian Infantry Brigade, and is the only surviving commandant from the three brigades which participated in the invasion; Rear-Admiral A. H. G. Storrs, of Ottawa, who represented the navy.

The cemetery at Bayeux holds the bodies of 4,600 soldiers, of whom 181 were Canadian.

Deputy Veterans Affairs Minister John Syner Hodgson participated in the ceremonies at Bayeux.

Across the way from the cemetery at Bayeux is a monument erected by France in memory of the 1,337 soldiers, including 270 Canadians, whose remains were never found.

During the day, the South Saskatchewan Regiment inaugurated a stone pyramid on the beach where they landed 25 years earlier.

Little Town Recalls Big Loss

'We Had to Be There'

BEDFORD, Va. (UPI)—Ray Nance stared reflectively at the Little Blue Mountain town, 1,500 feet below. But his thoughts were 25 years in the past.

"It was worth it," he said quietly. "We had to be there. Certainly it was worth it."

Nance, 54, operator of a lodge on the scenic Blue Ridge Parkway, was reliving a day in history that marked Bedford for mass tragedy—the Allied invasion of Normandy on June 6, 1944.

Nance was there when 2,000 American soldiers died on a four-mile stretch of sand commanded by German weapons. Its map designation was Omaha Beach.

The withering Nazi fire wiped out 93 per cent of a former Virginia National Guard Company. Thirty-seven men in the unit were from Bedford; 23 were killed. Most of the survivors were wounded.

This little town of 3,800 about 20 miles northeast of Roanoke had suffered perhaps the greatest loss of any American city on D-Day.

After the war, the town paid homage annually to its D-Day dead with parades and ceremonies. The survivors formed the Parker-Hoback Post of the 23rd Division Association, named in honor of two sets of twins who died at Omaha Beach.

In 1954, a 2½-ton memorial in Normandy stone, sent over by a French town, was dedicated with French and American dignitaries on hand.

That was the last such observance. The Parker-Hoback Post disbanded.

Today, on the 25th anniversary of the bloody landing, Bedford planned no ceremony. "There isn't much interest any more," said Jack Mitchell, one of the few unrounded survivors.

"Maybe as we grew older, we found other things to interest us, or maybe we just got tired of reliving it again," said Nance.

Officers Named For Optimists

George Lifton, of 2673 Capitol Heights, was recently named this year's lieutenant-governor of the Victoria and district Evening Optimist Club.

Others elected were: Wally Reid, president; Arthur Cannon, first vice-president; Mr. Lifton, second vice-president; and Douglas Wilson, Douglas Taylor, George Palmer and Bill Robinson, directors.

Bonn Boosts Sub Fleet

BONN (UPI)—The defence ministry said Thursday it will build 12 new U-boats which will more than double the size of the West German submarine fleet. The 450-ton vessels will join the existing 11 similar subs in coastal defence.

Trains Chopped In Northwest

SEATTLE (AP)—The Great Northern Railway plans to remove from service two of its four daily passenger trains running between Seattle and Vancouver, a company spokesman said. The two morning inter-nationals, No. 357, which leaves Vancouver at 8 a.m. and arrives in Seattle at 11:55 a.m., and No. 358, which leaves Seattle at 8 a.m. and arrives in Vancouver at 11:45 a.m., are to be discontinued after June 15.

Commission on Violence Reports:

Americans 'Bloody-Minded'

WASHINGTON (AP) — Americans are a rather bloody-minded people who "are likely to remain so as long as so many think violence is an ultimate solution to social problems," the national commission on violence reported Thursday.

It issued a 300,000-word report by two scholars on the anniversary of the fatal shooting of Senator Robert Kennedy, whose assassination led to formation of the national commission on the causes and prevention of violence.

FIRST REPORT

It's the first of several reports to be issued by the commission, which already has published investigative studies of civil disorders in the United States in 1968.

The main body of the report is a collection of historical and sociological studies delving into violence in the U.S. since its founding.

A brief summary by historian

DIFFERENT FORMS

"Americans have always been a violent people, although this violence has assumed different forms and has involved different groups . . .

"But Americans have been given to a kind of historical amnesia that masks much of their turbulent past. Probably all nations share this tendency to sweeten memories of their past through collective repression, but Americans have probably magnified this process of selection recollection, owing to our historic vision of ourselves as a latter-day chosen people, a New Jerusalem."

But, Graham and Gurr say, "the 1960s rank as one of our most violent eras."

The report disclosed these statistics on violence:

● In numbers of political assassinations, riots, politically relevant armed group attacks and demonstrations, the United States has been among the half-dozen most tumultuous nations in the world.

"But despite its frequency, civil strife in the United States has taken much less disruptive forms than in many non-Western and some Western countries."

● "Eleven of every thousand Americans took part in civil strife from mid-1965 to mid-1968 — almost all of it turmoil rather than a conspiracy or internal war — compared with an average of seven per thousand in 17 other Western democracies in a similar five-year period."

● "Six of these 17 had higher rates of participation than the United States, including Belgium, France and Italy.

● "Although 220 Americans died in violent civil strife in the five years before mid-1968, the rate of 1.1 per million population was infinitesimal compared with the average of 238 deaths per million for all nations, and less than half the European average of 2.4 per million."

● "In total magnitude of strife, taking into account the unusual frequency and duration of strife in the United States as well as its more moderate levels of participation and casualties, the United States ranks first among the 17 Western democracies, and 24th among the 114 larger nations and colonies of the world."

Berger Answers

Telephone Message

VANCOUVER (CP) — Tom Berger, provincial NDP leader, Wednesday night termed "absurd and ridiculous" a statement that it will cost $1 billion to take over British Columbia Telephone.

The statement was made earlier this week by Ernest Richardson, president of the utility.

Mr. Berger told a press conference there was an "$822,000,000 credibility gap" between the estimate of Mr. Richardson and an estimate by the former president, Cyrus McLean.

Mr. Berger said Mr. McLean's figure of $178,000,000 was more logical.

The opposition leader announced May 14 that if he leads the next government, B.C. Tel will be taken over by the province.

Haitians Raid Communists

PORT AU PRINCE (AP) — Haitian troops raided an alleged Communist headquarters in Port au Prince, touching off a battle that killed 20 rebels, including four top leaders of the Haitian Communist party, authorities reported.

It was the latest of several military actions in a government effort to wipe out Communist insurgents who have vowed to oust the regime of President Francois Duvalier.

Death Hits Again

NEW YORK (AP) — Last Aug. 27, Joel Shulman, a blind jazz pianist, was standing on a subway platform when his guide dog Bessie was struck by a train and killed.

Published reports of Shulman's loss—and the fact that nobody had answered his cries for help when he felt the dog's leash slipping from his fingers—drew hundreds of letters offering sympathy and financial help.

After a long search, Shulman found another dog, a yellow Labrador retriever he called Max.

Shulman, 45 and blind since birth, brought Max home to his New York apartment March 1 and resumed a normal life.

Last week, however, while Shulman was performing in a New York nightclub, Max ate some rat poison in the basement of the club and died.

Shulman, a native of Scotland, said Wednesday that someone had let Max off his leash, leaving him free to roam in the club. "They thought they were doing him a favor, letting him stretch his legs," said Shulman's wife Joan.

"I was crazy for this dog," said Shulman. "This dog was like no other dog I've ever had. This dog was a person."

Shulman said he must go into hospital for an operation in three weeks, preventing him from getting another dog immediately. After convalescing, he said, he plans to go to the Pilot School in Columbus, Ohio, for another dog.

Vultures Watch Wreckage

MONTREY, Mexico (UPI) — Ground crews hacked with machetes through cactus thickets and a helicopter dropped paratroopers onto a 6,000-foot mountain Thursday in twin rescue attempts near the site where a Mexican jetliner crashed, killing all 79 persons aboard.

The only living things near the smoldering wreckage were six circling vultures.

Low clouds and cold rain kept rescuers far from the ruins, a black scar on El Fraile — the Fray — an emerald peak 20 miles northwest of Montrey.

All aboard the Mexicana Airlines Boeing 727 were killed instantly Wednesday when it smashed at 600 miles an hour into the mountain while skimming the Sierra Madre for a place to land in a rainstorm.

More than 150 federal troops, city, state and federal police and red cross and green cross workers were thrown into the rescue attempts.

Gen. Esparza Arias, chief of staff of the 7th military zone in Mexico who directed the search and rescue operations, said the first attempts to recover bodies would be made when the weather cleared.

Barnard Arrives For Talks

MONTREAL (UPI) — South African heart transplant pioneer Dr. Christian Barnard arrived here Thursday for the second world symposium on heart transplantation, which takes place today through Sunday.

Barnard, one of the more than 100 heart surgeons from 20 countries attending the symposium, was met by Dr. Pierre Gendron, pioneer in heart transplant surgery in Canada.

But Firm Will Help Trout

Kaiser Absolved
Of Stream Blame

Kaiser Resources Ltd. has received unwarranted criticism for pollution of trout streams in the East Kootenays with runoff from its surface mining operations near Natal Michel, Minister Frank Richter said Thursday.

After spending several days in the area, the minister said he believes the source of siltation is Harmer Creek and the larger Elk River was excessive runoff from smaller creeks at higher elevations. The cause was excessive snow melt combined with warm rain.

Nevertheless, Mr. Richter said Kaiser is going ahead with plans to create small dams on Harmer Creek which will form settling ponds designed to prevent gravel spawning beds from becoming clogged with silt.

Recreation Minister Kenneth Kiernan, who disclosed last week that provincial fisheries biologists recognized the threat caused by siltation to the local sports fishery and had ordered Kaiser to construct the dams, said he was satisfied action was being taken.

New surface mining legislation, passed this spring, gives mining companies and gravel pit operators—including government departments—60 days in which to file reclamation plans for their operations. Mr. Richter said a special committee set up to review the plans so far has received about 20 plans without granting any permits.

Kaiser hasn't submitted its reclamation plan, but it is working on it now, Mr. Richter said. He added the government, rather than close an industry down, would be willing to issue a temporary permit.

Quadra sights camera on sights of Quadra

Miguel de la Quadra Wants Island Back

By BILL THOMAS

Miguel de la Quadra arrived here Thursday with a party of fellow Spaniards and hinted he would like the spot in the Pacific his ancestor claimed in 1762.

The direct descendant of Don Juan Francisco de la Bodega y Quadra is the first member of the family to look over this area in six generations.

Mr. Quadra produced a photostatic copy of a map in the Madrid Naval Museum for Provincial Archivist Willard Ireland with Vancouver Island clearly marked as Isla de Quadra y Vancouver.

Mr. Ireland commented: "It was named that way for a long time and (Quadra) was dropped only around 1849."

The 36-year-old Quadra, who speaks little English, accommodated his interviewers in perfect French.

"I really would like to buy a small island here, the country is just so beautiful. We still have the Quadra family home and as I was growing up, my parents told me of the adventures of my famous ancestor."

He told Mr. Ireland a little-known story about the explorer. "Before he came north to this coast he sailed to Australia with the first cargo of Merino sheep from Peru."

"My sister did a study on him in university and found this out. My cousin is the mayor of Bilbao and has just written a complete biography of the explorer so I hope we can get a copy for the archives here."

"I presented a portrait of my ancestor to the premier. I hope nobody touches the point. It was only done two weeks ago. In a couple more weeks it can be varnished. I am not sure if he was told it's so new."

"We were in a hurry so the museum in Madrid had this done for us. It's a copy of a painting made from a photograph of the original which is now in the Philippines on an exhibition tour. This one was done by a young artist who happens to be doing his military service. His name is Manuel Daniel. I also gave the premier a sword like the one Don Quadra is wearing in the picture."

"I am doing a film for television and I had hoped we could get to Nootka to film the place where Quadra took residence as governor in the name of Spain."

Miguel Quadra not only carries the name of the adventurous Don, he also has inherited his restless spirit. He explored the upper reaches of the Amazon River for three years, living with the natives in the dense forests and making films.

As a journalist he has covered fighting in the Congo, Vietnam, Santo Domingo and Biafra. He also travelled through Siberia and Mongolia.

Navy Will Guard Arctic, Too

OTTAWA (CP)—Canada's navy will have to guard the Arctic Ocean as well as the Atlantic and the Pacific coasts to back up Prime Minister Trudeau's policy of protecting national sovereignty.

A defence department spokesman said

Thursday that the naval role is one which has to be enlarged.

A key point of the prime minister's April statements on Canada's changing defence role was the top priority given to protection of sovereignty.

He placed guarding the Arctic ahead

of continental defence, NATO and United Nations peacekeeping operations.

In the Commons Wednesday, Defence Minister Leo Cadieux said the prime minister's statements should be encouraging to anyone "with a special interest in naval affairs."

Ottawa Denies Claims Cuts Blow to NATO

'Why Pick On Us?'

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada's annoyance with Britain and the United States for their comments on this country's planned troop reductions in Europe again came into the open Thursday.

Prime Minister Trudeau said in a Commons reply to Opposition Leader Robert Stanfield that he cannot see the logic in arguments put forward by British Defence Secretary Denis Healey and U.S. Defence Secretary Melvin Laird.

Stanfield had asked about assertions made by the two defence secretaries that a Canadian troop reduction in Europe would create a need for earlier use of nuclear weapons in the event of war.

CONVENTIONAL

Trudeau said the British and American argument might make sense if NATO was withdrawing all conventional forces from Europe.

The prime minister said Canada is trying to establish a conventional force which will not increase the danger of nuclear warfare. Moreover, he hoped to reduce its nuclear commitments.

It was not the first time Trudeau has put down Healey publicly.

Work Halts at Kaiser

VANCOUVER (CP)—Work stopped Thursday at the multimillion dollar Kaiser Coal development in southeastern British Columbia as labor disputes continued to plague the province.

Local 213 of the Teamsters Union placed pickets at four access roads to the coal project after striking against a subcontracting firm, Fred Sowehuk Trucking Ltd.

The picket line was honored by 650 members of the building trades union employed by Kaiser Resources.

ROBERTS BANK

Teamsters official Kenneth Scott, said the union has joint certification with the contractor but has not been able to negotiate an agreement.

In a second action, work stopped on a section of the Roberts Bank deep sea port rail link 20 miles south of here. The strike was sparked by a disagreement over hiring procedures.

LESS MEAT?

Construction at the port itself, being built to handle Kaiser Coal, was not affected by the walkout staged by the International Union of Operating Engineers.

As a dispute which has closed 102 Lower Mainland supermarkets continued, a spokesman for a large packing house said the meat available to consumers has been cut by 75 per cent. However, this was challenged by a second firm which said consumers still have access to about 65 per cent of normal supplies.

A meatcutters' union spokesman said negotiations with six major chain stores were suspended Wednesday because of a deadlock over hours of work.

FUNDS SOUGHT

Also, the Retail, Food and Drug Clerks' Union, locked out of the same stores, is canvassing union members throughout the province for funds to support their local members.

Robbers Flee By Yacht

QUEBEC (CP)—Four masked bandits, one of them a woman, escaped up the St. Lawrence River in a small yacht Thursday after robbing a post office in suburban Levis of $110,000 in cash and bonds.

The robbers exchanged about 20 shots with pursuing police but made their escape with the help of a succession of stolen vehicles.

Even Saigon Group Backing Coalition

PARIS (Reuters) — Formation of a new South Vietnamese government as a step toward peace emerged as a major topic Thursday in Paris, Washington and Saigon.

A Viet Cong spokesman meeting correspondents after the 20th session of the Paris peace talks, said contacts are beginning with anti-government South Vietnamese in a bid to create a provisional coalition administration in Saigon.

State Secretary William Rogers said in a Washington news conference that the U.S. would accept Communists in a future South Vietnamese government if they were freely and fairly elected.

And in Saigon, a group of leading intellectuals proposed a four-point peace plan which would include an interim "conciliatory" government to run the country prior to new elections.

Tran Hoai Nam, Viet Cong spokesman, disclosed to reporters that contacts are beginning in South Vietnam and Paris with "Vietnamese personalities" opposed to the administration of President Nguyen Van Thieu.

Rogers, who was not commenting on the Paris disclosures, said Thieu is ready to accept Communists in a South Vietnamese government if they

Red-Fearing Blondes May Go Into Discard

VANCOUVER (CP)—Charles Maclean said Wednesday night that if he is elected British Columbia Conservative party leader he will change the image of the party by getting rid of "the 52-year-old blondes who see a Red under every bed."

"These are the governors of our party right now," he said.

Mr. Maclean, speaking to 50 persons at a meeting of the party's Vancouver Centre Riding Association, also criticized the present Conservative attitude towards politics.

He said the reason the party hasn't elected anyone is because it is operating as amateurs.

Mr. Maclean, a lawyer, said he considered the labor legislation passed by the present Social Credit administration the finest in North America.

The problem is, he said, neither labor nor management trust the Social Credit government. Social Credit administration the finest in North America.

Change of Mind Sought at Lake Cowichan

Brothers Will Talk To Quitting Trustees

By DONNA CLEMENTS

Education Minister Donald Brothers said Thursday that he would try to persuade five members of Lake Cowichan school board, who resigned earlier in the day, to change their minds.

The resignations, including that of chairman Mrs. Lee Budden, came after a special meeting had adjourned.

"I wish to hand in my resignation as of tomorrow (Friday) at 5 p.m.," said Mrs. Budden. The four other trustees, Bill Thompson, Fred Ozero, Pete Giles and Mrs. Kathryn Sharp followed suit.

TWO STAY

Two trustees remain—William Sutherland, who has been a trustee for about 1½ years and William Komo, a trustee for six months.

The five trustees blamed the attitude of ratepayers who attended a regular meeting Tuesday for their resignations.

Mr. Brothers told the Colonist that he gathered that the resignations were made in the heat of the moment "and on reflection, those who tendered resignations might reconsider. I would certainly do my best to get them to do so."

ASSURANCE GIVEN

Mr. Brothers said if the trustees did not retract their resignations, "I want to assure the ratepayers of Lake Cowichan that they will not be left without some legal school administration."

He said he would be looking into the situation first thing this morning, and possibly would be considering the appointment of a trustee to administer school board affairs until a byelection could be held.

A delegation of more than 35 area residents attended Tuesday's meeting to demand that the board give strike non-teaching employees a settlement.

CAR POOL

Residents accused trustees of making their children "scabs" because they were crossing lines to go to school, and claimed the children were having to clean schools. They also claimed that parents, driving students to school in a car pool, were also "scabs."

A settlement was reached between employees and the board on Wednesday and the employees are back at work.

After she resigned Thursday, Mrs. Budden commented: "We may be working for the taxpayers but we do not have to take that abuse."

'CAME TO YELL'

"The people did not come here to inquire into what was going on, they just came to yell at us."

A letter from trustees stated: "Throughout our term of office, we felt that our efforts were conducted on a business-like approach to education in this district. To function effectively, a board requires the support of the community. Unfortunately, our efforts do not appear to be acceptable to a large and vociferous section of the community. Our conscience directs that we can no longer serve the electorate under these circumstances."

The letter was signed by Mrs.

Ozero

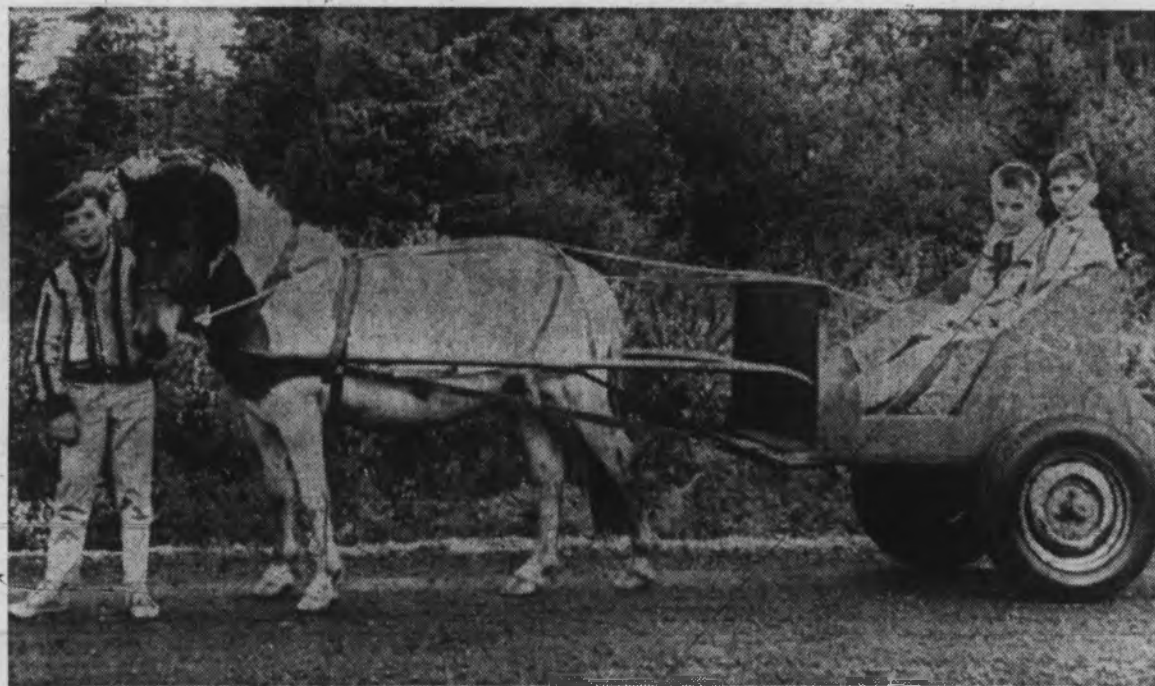

Budden, Mr. Thompson, Mr. Ozero, Mr. Giles and Mrs. Sharp. "The board no longer exists," said Mr. Kimak.

"We do not have enough trustees to even make a quorum. We will now have to contact the department of education for further instructions. I am in no position to state what will happen. We will just have to wait for instructions."

Mrs. Budden, from Youbou, has been on the board for almost seven years and chairman for nearly three. Mr. Thompson, also from Youbou, has served for nearly three; Mr. Ozero of Lake Cowichan, has served for almost four years; Mr. Giles of Honeycomb Bay, has been a trustee for almost six months and Mrs. Sharp of Lake Cowichan has been on the board for six years.

Engineer Looks at Duncan Sewage Problem:

There's No Pollution Threat

By KLAUS MUENTER

DUNCAN — Duncan's sewage lagoon has digestive troubles. City officials promised quick action after they were told about it Thursday morning.

Russell Potter, the city's consulting engineer, was called immediately and has been asked to propose a solution to a problem of solid matter leaving the second settling pond through the outfall.

NO THREAT

The engineer denied that there was any pollution threat. Mr. Potter said that he and public health inspector Archie Hill had identified the solids as dead algae floating on the surface.

He said a sample had been taken and there was no odor. Mr. Potter said it would be impossible for human waste to leave the lagoon because the sewage first goes through a skimming tank and then undergoes a vegetable oxidation process which lasts many days.

At that time Jack Dobson, then mayor of Duncan, stated that he would not hesitate to drink the water at the outfall pointing out it would be clear and would pose no pollution threat.

The lagoon is situated on land leased from the Cowichan Indians. Adjacent is North Cowichan sewage lagoon.

Ald. Ross Harder surveyed the situation at noon Thursday with Walter Latta, second vice-president of Cowichan Fish and Game Association and Arnie Williams, president of Vancouver Island Wildlife Association.

Ald. Harder said the engineer was preparing a report. He added that attempts would be made to stop solid matter leaving the lagoon.

CHANGE URGED

Mr. Latta stated: "I think the city's sewage lagoon is up to standards, that is if they stop solid matter from going down the river."

"However, I don't think the sewage lagoon is good enough, but that is not the fault of the city or the municipality. It is up to the provincial government to provide stronger legislation. It is a real bone of contention especially with the election coming up. If legislation is changed then standards for sewage systems will also have to be upgraded."

Brazilian Orphans

Priest Looks for Help

By MARY TALOR

PORT ALBERNI — A 27-year-old South American priest, Padre Ulisses Martins, working his way home to Rio de Janeiro after an unsuccessful search in the U.S. for funds to support his orphanage, appealed to Canadians for help when he visited Port Alberni this week.

Father Martins is a member of the Independent National Church of Brazil. "This is still the Roman Catholic Church but some 35 years ago, the Brazilian national church broke away from the Vatican," he explained through an interpreter.

"For centuries, the Brazilian people sent tons of gold to Rome through our churches, but it became apparent that the money would be better used to help the desperately poor people in our own country. So the Brazilian church broke away on its own."

Father Martins left the order in which he was ordained to serve with the National Church of Brazil two years ago. Since then he has worked steadily with the orphanage which the Brazilian church founded in Rio de Janeiro six years ago.

"There are 5,000,000 people in Rio de Janeiro," he said.

"It is one of the most beautiful cities in the world, but in contrast to the new office buildings and magnificent homes of the American industrialists, thousands of people live almost like animals. Their only concern is survival."

SHACK BUILDINGS

He showed his album of pictures of orphaned boys, and shack-like buildings in which they are housed.

"I have written and received much information from Boys' Town in Nebraska about their operation there. I would like to be able to purchase land outside the city where the boys could know something other than the street life, where they could be trained to be self-supporting."

CANADA'S DIFFERENT

He said what he wanted to do in Port Alberni was to form a group which could support and encourage his work. He said helpers need not be of his faith.

He said he was happy to find so many Canadians concerned about Vietnam and Biafra and said he was surprised to find that Canada was different to the U.S. in many ways.

"There are many orphanages, operated by the government, to try and help the children. But always there are more children than they can accommodate. Our orphanage only takes boys at present, because we do not have suitable accommodation for girls, but if ever our plans come true, it will be a boys and girls town we will have some day," the priest said.

NO ROOM

Children for whom there is no room in either government or privately-run orphanages, there is only life in the streets.

The boys become thieves, perhaps killers. The girls turned to stealing and prostitution, he said.

"Survival is all" said Father Martins.

He said he would welcome correspondence from other young Canadians or anyone interested in his country or his orphanage.

"Latin America and Canada need to understand one another, and to be united, so we can both stand on our own feet without exploitation from other countries," he explained.

"In my country, exploitation has become a way of life but it cannot go on forever. Sooner or later, if things do not change, I fear bloodshed must come." And he hopes letters will arrive at his address: Padre Ulisses Martins, Rua Bernardo d Vasconcelos, NBR 365, Raleoso, Rio de Janeiro, Brazil.

The past year, Father Ulisses, as he prefers to be called, has worked in the United States, cleaning offices at night to support himself, sending a little money each month toward the orphanage.

Working his way back to Rio aboard a Brazilian ship, Father Ulisses discovered he would be coming to Canada, and decided to make one more appeal before the long trip home. Through an interpreter, he contacted several church groups and others it was felt might be interested and laid his problem before them.

Control Lack Rapped

PORT ALBERNI — The board of Alberni-Clayoquot regional district has expressed "displeasure and frustration with the provincial government in the matter of air pollution control." A spokesman for the committee said this week: "For some months the board has been considering the implementation of a bylaw to effect air quality control in this area, in line with standards issued early this year by the Minister of health services, Mr. R. Lofmark."

"Press releases from the minister and a draft bylaw, prepared by the health branch, indicated that all procedures with regard to air testing would be the responsibility of the health department."

MONEY LACK

"Now, the board has been advised by the local medical health officer that due to lack of money and personnel, no help will be available from his department."

"This means that if the regional district were to pursue the matter of air pollution control, it would become involved in heavy costs for testing equipment, laboratory facilities and hiring suitable technical personnel," the board report stated.

"The board feels that this 'abdication of responsibility' by provincial authorities is reprehensible, in view of the fact it was the government who first introduced the standards and set the guidelines."

"The board is protesting the action of the provincial government in letters to Mr. Lofmark, Mr. Campbell (municipal affairs minister) and Mr. Whitson (minister of lands and forests), the three cabinet ministers on the Pollution Control Board."

Chemainus, Crofton Request to North Cowichan

Protests Grow Over Band Festival

CROFTON — Crofton ratepayers decided Wednesday to tell North Cowichan council that they object to a proposal by MCM Productions for a rock band festival at Fuller Lake Arena, Chemainus July 1.

Mrs. Jean Fyffe, president of Chemainus Ratepayers' Association, told the Crofton group that her association had already sent a letter to council urging it to ban the bands.

After some discussion, the Crofton ratepayers agreed to send a letter stressing that they did not want the festival application to be accepted.

The application is to be considered by council Wednesday. "Chemainus ratepayers feel it would be rather too big for them," said Mrs. Fyffe. "There are 10 bands involved and includes B.C. and the northern states. The festival will be sponsored by a Vancouver radio station and there will be dancing from either noon to midnight or 2 p.m. to midnight. "They said they would sponsor security if necessary — life-guards and cleanup crew. We felt it would be too big for us and there are reports that 6,000 hippies could come — not to mention our kids."

Commenting on a reference to "the first Vancouver Island rock festival," Mrs. Fyffe said: "We could be looking at the arena being tied up every July 1. I am opposed to it — I am speaking for myself and I am going to write a letter to council personally."

During their discussions, the ratepayers frequently referred to a similar four-day festival at Aldergrove which they felt was a precedent as to what could happen to Chemainus and surrounding areas if the application were accepted.

"I think it is wrong to bring this up at a ratepayers meeting like this," said Ald. Gerry Smith of North Cowichan. "It is going to make the papers and will be much more advertised. It will be brought before the council on Wednesday and I am quite sure it is going to be turned down."

Crofton president, Ken Mosley said: "A lot of people are quite concerned and don't want to just wait for it to be passed over."

Mr. Smith continued that it would be unfair to bring those kind of people in when there would be a horse show on the Fuller Lake grounds the same day.

"Hippies would bring in dope and everything," he said. "How would you like your daughter to get mixed up with a bunch like that?"

Father Monahan relaxes

Year's Study, Travel Will Celebrate Priest's Anniversary

Photostory
By DONNA CLEMENTS

DUNCAN—Rev. Paul Monahan, 67, celebrates the 40th anniversary of his ordination Tuesday with a year's sabbatical leave which is effective Monday.

Father Monahan is a priest with the Oblate Fathers whose provincial house, for St. Paul's office, is in Vancouver. He was the first member of the order to go to Duncan in 1959 when the Oblate Fathers took the place of the De Montfort Fathers in the city.

Father Monahan was born in New Westminster. He was educated in New Westminster and Edmonton and received his theological training in the city of Washington. He has served 22 appointments since he was ordained in 1929.

"I have held a good variety of appointments," he said. "This will be my first break and I plan to travel and study. When my leave is finished I do not know where I will be going, but I am sure they will not send me back to Duncan again because 10 years is quite a while to spend in one place."

Nanaimo Building Plan

New Group Formed To Investigate Theatre

NANAIMO — After one committee had been disbanded, Tuesday another was formed from the same group.

The performing arts steering committee, having fulfilled its use by investigating purchase of the Capitol theatre and having decided the public would be better advised to support a new building project, disbanded itself and formed into a theatre home to discuss investigative building investigation committee.

Elected officers were Arnold Olson, chairman; Cliff Coulthick, vice-chairman; Ron Butler, treasurer; Gordon Kirby, secretary; Ben Boers, Nanaimo city building inspector as technical advisor and Roger Desprez, amateur play and musical director as technical advisor.

The officers will meet at 9 p.m. June 11 at Mr. Coulthick's. The committee, when formed, agreed it would not be attempting to compete with the Marine Gardens recreation, convention, theatre project.

Rather, the group consensus was that the Marine Gardens Society would be invited to have a representative on the committee, as would the Nanaimo Regional District Arts Council and other groups interested in having facilities for performing arts.

Relief Fund Getting $200,000

Ottawa Chips In for Trail Flood

TRAIL, B.C. (CP)—The federal government announced today it will contribute $200,000 to the relief fund set up after a sudden flood ripped through the downtown area April 23.

The figure, announced by Works Minister Art Laing in a telephone call to Mayor F. E. De Vito, does not include $50,000 already given to repair a Columbia River wall that had to be blasted open.

The provincial government has given $700,000 and more than $100,000 has been raised in donations from other centres, private donations and charity canvasses.

The British Columbia government and the city are negotiating for further financial contributions for damage to city-owned property. Provincial highways also were damaged.

Damage to private houses and loss to homeowners and businessmen was assessed at about $1,200,000. Total damage in the flood was listed at about $2,000,000.

In Victoria, Education Minister Donald Brothers, who is MLA for Rossland-Trail, said he was glad to hear they have made a contribution but would not comment on the amount of the contribution.

"Now is the time, before another disaster occurs, to establish a federal-provincial formula to assist disaster areas," he said.

Mr. Brothers said that at the time of the disaster Premier W. A. C. Bennett had asked for such a "national formula" and indicated the province would like to see the federal government pay 40 per cent of the bill with the provinces picking up the remainder.

In 1964 when a tidal wave hit

the Port Alberni area on Vancouver Island, causing damage estimated at $1,500,000, the provincial government contributed $800,000 and the federal government $250,000.

Premier Bennett said he had "no comment" on the federal contribution.

Keenleyside Claims Hydro Fair

VANCOUVER (CP)—British Columbia Hydro and Power Authority has been both fair and generous in handling land expropriations, Dr. Hugh Keenleyside, co-chairman of the company, said. Speaking to the Men's Canadian Club, Dr. Keenleyside asked, "is it reasonable to pay an extra $100,000 to re-route a line around a scenic area?"

"Our local representatives have carried out instructions to be fair and generous . . . but how do you pay the price to meet the psychological needs of someone who has been living in the area for perhaps 30 years and does not want to change?" Dr. Keenleyside asked.

Miguel de la Quadra Wants Island Back

By BILL THOMAS

Miguel de la Quadra arrived here Thursday with a party of fellow Spaniards and hinted he would like the spot in the Pacific his ancestor claimed in 1762.

The direct descendant of Don Juan Francisco de la Bodega y Quadra is the first member of the family to look over this area in six generations.

Mr. Quadra produced a photostatic copy of a map in the Madrid Naval Museum for Provincial Archivist Willard Ireland with Vancouver Island clearly marked as Isla de Quadra y Vancouver.

Mr. Ireland commented: "It was named that way for a long time and (Quadra) was dropped only around 1849."

The 36-year-old Quadra, who speaks little English, accommodated his interviewers in perfect French.

"I really would like to buy a small island here, the country is just so beautiful. We still have the Quadra family home and as I was growing up, my parents told me of the adventures of my famous ancestor."

He told Mr. Ireland a little-known story about the explorer. "Before he came north to this coast he sailed to Australia with the first cargo of Merino sheep from Peru."

"My sister did a study on him in university and found this out. My cousin is the mayor of Bilbao and has just written a complete biography of the explorer so I hope we can get a copy for the archives here."

"I presented a portrait of my ancestor to the premier. I hope nobody touches the point. It was only done two weeks ago. In a couple more weeks it can be varnished. I am not sure if he was told it's so new."

"We were in a hurry so the museum in Madrid had this done for us. It's a copy of a painting made from a photograph of the original which is now in the Philippines on an exhibition tour. This one was done by a young artist who happens to be doing his military service. His name is Manuel Daniel. I also gave the premier a sword like the one Don Quadra is wearing in the picture."

"I am doing a film for television and I had hoped we could get to Nootka to film the place where Quadra took residence as governor in the name of Spain."

Miguel Quadra not only carries the name of the adventurous Don, he also has inherited his restless spirit. He explored the upper reaches of the Amazon River for three years, living with the natives in the dense forests and making films.

As a journalist he has covered fighting in the Congo, Vietnam, Santo Domingo and Biafra. He also travelled through Siberia and Mongolia

Navy Will Guard Arctic, Too

OTTAWA (CP)—Canada's navy will have to guard the Arctic Ocean as well as the Atlantic and the Pacific coasts to back up Prime Minister Trudeau's policy of protecting national sovereignty.

A defence department spokesman said

Thursday that the naval role "is one which has to be enlarged."

A key point of the prime minister's April statements on Canada's changing defence role was the top priority given to protection of sovereignty.

He placed guarding the Arctic ahead

of continental defence, NATO and United Nations peacekeeping operations.

In the Commons Wednesday, Defence Minister Leo Cadieux said the prime minister's statements should be encouraging to anyone "with a special interest in naval affairs."

Ottawa Still Annoyed

NATO BLOW DENIED

'Why Pick On Us?'

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada's annoyance with Britain and the United States for their comments on this country's planned troop reductions in Europe again came into the open Thursday.

Prime Minister Trudeau said in a Commons reply to Opposition Leader Robert Stanfield that he cannot see the logic in arguments put forward by British Defence Secretary Denis Healey and U.S. Defence Secretary Melvin Laird.

Stanfield had asked about assertions made by the two defence secretaries that a Canadian troop reduction in Europe would create a need for earlier use of nuclear weapons in the event of war.

CONVENTIONAL

Trudeau said the British and American argument might make sense if NATO was withdrawing all conventional forces from Europe.

The prime minister said Canada is trying to establish a conventional force which will not increase the danger of nuclear warfare. Moreover it hoped to reduce its nuclear commitments.

It was not the first time Trudeau has put down Healey publicly.

Labor Woes Spread to Port, Too

Work Halts at Kaiser

VANCOUVER (CP) — Work stopped Thursday at the multi-million dollar Kaiser Coal development in southeastern British Columbia as labor disputes continued to plague the province. Local 213 of the Teamsters Union placed pickets at four access roads to the coal project after striking against a subcontracting firm, Fred Sowchuk Trucking Ltd.

The picket line was honored by 630 members of the building trades union employed by Kaiser Resources.

ROBERTS BANK

Teamsters official Kenneth Scott said the union has joint certification with the contractor but has not been able to negotiate an agreement.

In a second action, work stopped on a section of the Roberts Bank deep sea port rail link 20 miles south of here. The strike was sparked by a disagreement over hiring procedures.

LESS MEAT?

Construction at the port itself, being built to handle Kaiser Coal, was not affected by the International Union of Operating Engineers.

As a dispute which has closed 102 Lower Mainland supermarkets continued, a spokesman for a large packing house said the meat available to consumers has been cut by 75 per cent. However, this was challenged by a second firm which said consumers still have access to about 65 per cent of normal supplies.

A meatcutters' union spokesman said negotiations with six major chain stores were suspended Wednesday because of a deadlock over hours of work.

FUNDS SOUGHT

Also, the Retail, Food and Drug Clerks' Union, locked out of the same stores, is canvassing union members throughout the province for funds to support their local members.

Robbers Flee By Yacht

QUEBEC (CP)—Four masked bandits, one of them a woman, escaped up the St. Lawrence River in a small yacht Thursday after robbing a post office in suburban Levis of $110,000 in cash and bonds.

The robbers exchanged about 20 shots with pursuing police but made their escape with the help of a succession of stolen vehicles.

Even Saigon Group Backing Coalition

PARIS (Reuters) — Formation of a new South Vietnamese government as a step toward peace emerged as a major topic Thursday in Paris, Washington and Saigon.

A Viet Cong spokesman meeting correspondents after the 20th session of the Paris peace talks, said contacts are beginning with anti-government South Vietnamese in a bid to create a provisional coalition administration in Saigon.

State Secretary William Rogers said in a Washington news conference that the U.S. would accept Communists in a future South Vietnamese government if they were freely and fairly elected.

And in Saigon, a group of leading intellectuals proposed a four-point peace plan which would include an interim "conciliatory" government to run the country prior to new elections.

Tran Hoi Nam, Viet Cong spokesman, disclosed to reporters that contacts are beginning in South Vietnam and Paris with "Vietnamese personalities" opposed to the administration of President Nguyen Van Thieu.

Rogers, who was not commenting on the Paris disclosures, said Thieu is ready to accept Communists in a South Vietnamese government if they

Colors Wild for Cheats As Cards Given Rinse

By KEN KELLY

TORONTO (CP) — Blondes and card cheats have more fun using Miss Clairol hair color, an RCMP documents expert told forensic scientists here Thursday.

The hair color is a dandy way of touching up the backs of a deck of cards to give the card sharp an edge over his opponent.

The color is applied and quickly wiped off. Invisible under normal circumstances, the markings show up fairly clearly when the cheat throws his eyes slightly out of focus.

It's a trick with the eyes that can be acquired with about half an hour's practice. Staff Sergeant Don Brown of the RCMP's Vancouver crime detection laboratory said the hair color dodge is

Tory Hopeful's Tactics

Red-Fearing Blondes May Go Into Discard

VANCOUVER (CP) — Charles McLean said Wednesday night that if he is elected British Columbia Conservative party leader he will change the image of the party by getting rid of "the 52-year-old blondes who see a Red under every bed."

"These are the governors of our party right now," he said.

Mr. Maclean, speaking to 50 persons at a meeting of the party's Vancouver Centre Riding Association, also criticized the present Conservative attitude towards politics.

He said the reason the party hasn't elected anyone is because it is operating as amateurs.

Mr. Maclean, a lawyer, said he considered the labor legislation passed by the present Social Credit administration the finest in North America.

The problem is, he said, neither labor nor management trust the Social Credit government sufficiently to allow the legislation to operate.

Excitement High In Schools' Track Meet

Doncaster and Lakehill schools took the lion's share in the ninth annual elementary school track meet Thursday night at the University of Victoria's Centennial stadium.

A crowd of about 3,000 students from Greater Victoria elementary schools cheered themselves hoarse, waved streamers, chanted slogans, and did all but run out onto the track in support of their favorites.

Tension mounted shortly after the races started at 6 p.m.

Runners developed severe cases of the jitters as was shown by a number of false starts. Teachers became as involved in the events as the students.

Mrs. Margaret Forman, a Grade 6 teacher at Doncaster was so enthusiastic she went alongside the track and ran back and forth coaching all her students in their races. As the presentation of ribbons and announcements were made the crowd roared its approval.

During the boys 11 and under relay race more than the normal groans, screams and cheers came from the crowd when Doncaster dropped the baton.

But Doncaster's final runner, Brian Marsh, picked up the dead baton and streaked down the stretch to a crowd-pleasing win.

Cindy Druce, of Braefoot, set the first record of the meet by running the girls' 11 and under 85-yard dash in 10.6 seconds, down from 10.8 set in 1964.

Monty Pittson, 11, of Willows, followed suit when he set a new record for the boys 11-and-under 85-yard dash. He broke the tape in 10.5 seconds, two tenths better than the 1964 record 10.7 seconds.

Janis Turner of Lakehill set a record in the girls 12-and-under 85-yard dash in a time of 10.4 from 10.7 set in 1967, and was followed by the Glenford's Cheryl Blevins winning the B-girls 12 and under 85-yard dash in 10.5 seconds. The former record was 10.7.

Crop Peaks Early

Strawberry Pickers Required Next Week

Strawberry pickers will be urgently needed next week if a plentiful supply of fresh berries is to reach Victoria stores.

J. D. Holloway, president of the Saanich Fruit Growers Association, said this year's 400-ton crop valued at about $200,000 was ripening quickly and would be nearing its peak next week.

"If we can't get pickers we can't keep the ripe berries picked soon enough to make the fresh berry markets," he said. "There are some fresh local berries on the market but not many."

The hot weather has brought the crop to an early peak.

"Normally the peak of the season is around June 20 when the youngsters are out of school. The lack of pickers is one of the hazards of an early season," he said.

He estimated the peak of this season would arrive around June 12 to 15.

"We might just squeak by. I think some of the kids will be out of school by then," he said.

Mr. Holloway said youngsters about 13 to 14 years old would have no trouble making $4 in a day if they wanted to work at it.

If It's in Native Schools

Saanich Indians For Integration

By NANCY BROWN

School integration between Indians and white people would be a good thing—but it should take place in Indian schools, members of the Saanich Education Association decided Thursday night.

If Indians enter public schools it should only be after establishment of an Indian curriculum. Members of four peninsula Indian bands met to discuss the latest ultimatum from the federal government giving three choices for the future of Indian day schools.

ALTERNATIVES

Alternatives open were to become part of the provincial school system by joining the local school district; to become a member of a parochial school system; or to keep the present day schools, operating under either the federal or provincial government.

However, the meeting was told, there is no parochial school system on Saanich Peninsula, which leaves only two alternatives.

If the Indians decided to remain as a day school, the Indian Affairs department would want to know the reason.

UP TO PEOPLE

Chief Ed Underwood said it was entirely up to the people to make their own decision.

"If you want it, it is up to you," he said. "This time you are not being pushed as you have been in the past, with the federal government forcing changes without even consulting the Indian."

"All the same," he warned, "if you want it then you are going to have to have good reasons, and good planning."

100 YEARS

"This school has been open for a 100 years, but we don't see our children graduated from here and going on to become doctors, engineers or nurses. If we want the school we must be sure we are offering our children an equal standard of education with the public schools."

While some members felt many Indians aren't yet ready for integration, Arthur Cooper disagreed.

"We're as ready as we'll ever be," he said. "It's the white man who isn't ready, and he will have to learn that we are going to demand equal treatment before we get it."

He wanted to see the Tsartlip day school integrated, but wondered how many white children would attend if the school was opened.

PEOPLE COMPLAIN

"When we go into public schools, people complain that we are lowering standards, so I don't see them sending white children to join us."

Mr. Cooper did not think integration in public schools would work. He cited instances of Indian children being blamed for hassles between white and Indian, where there had been provocation by the white children.

"We have to face the fact that some teachers just don't like Indians," he said.

Association president Mrs. Audrey Sampson said, by delaying integration it might be possible to get some Indian culture and language subjects available in public schools.

"This is an important part of the Canadian heritage to learn about the first people here, and it should be part of the curriculum for the sake of both the white and Indian students," she said.

Although the proposed change-over is due in Sept. 1970, it was decided to ask for an extension to give integration further study. In the meantime, the school should remain as a day school with a board of governors or trustees to form policy.

Caroline Elliot said successful integration into the public school system would be impossible without a change of curriculum.

"Indian children are degraded in Grade One when the class starts to learn about the dirty savages who inhabited the land before the white man came," she said. "When children play cowboys and Indians the children all want to be the cowboy. They shouldn't be ashamed of their past."

One Roof, Three Pools

Future Swim Complex Moves Nearer Reality

A proposal for a new aquatic complex in the $1,600,000 range will be submitted to Victoria council's recreation committee at a meeting probably next week, Ald. Percy Frampton said Thursday.

Chairman of a committee which has been working on plans for the centre for months, Ald. Frampton said that a meeting would be held Thursday after which a report on the final design would be made.

Architect John Di Castri has been working on the latest design for several weeks. An earlier design was submitted to the planning committee but was rejected on the ground that it cost too much.

REACTION AWAITED

The complex will be located in the Central Park area where about $200,000 has been spent acquiring land.

The alderman said Thursday final approval of the design was dependent upon the reaction of the council's recreation committee and city council proper but he thought the concept would be satisfactory.

It is believed to envisage three pools, one T-shaped with a 50-metre stretch comprising the main length and a 25-metre pool forming the crosspiece of the T.

SEATING FOR 800

The complex will contain two other pools, one for familiarization with water and reaching a depth of 15 inches and one for training with a maximum four-foot depth.

All will be housed under geodesic domes and there will be seating accommodation for 800 spectators.

It has been reported that observation windows will be built below the surface in the diving sections to enable coaches to observe trainees under water.

DIVING WELL

The 25-metre pool will have a diving well with three two-metre towers and one two-metre tower. Both pools will be used for competitive and recreational swimming.

Lagging Labor 'Not Hep' to Youth

By DON COLLINS

The aims of today's youth are well ahead of those of the labor movement, but young people face a somewhat bleak future.

These two points were made in interviews and addresses Thursday as 15 delegates from Canada's second largest union gathered in Victoria.

"There is a growing New Left spreading all over the country and we're not hep to it," said Percy Huggett of Toronto, president of the Ontario division of the Canadian Union of Public Employees.

He was referring chiefly to rebelling university students as CUPE's B.C. division began its annual convention at the Empress Hotel.

He said in an interview that "students' thinking is miles ahead of ours."

"We used to come to conventions and call for free education. They are well beyond that and are calling for freedom of choice in education," he said.

Stanley Little of Ottawa, national president of CUPE, took a look at a different side of the question during an address later.

"The outlook for the young people is not too good," he said.

"Your children and mine have little hope of ever building a home or buying one," he said.

And technological change would mean only one chance in four of a youth remaining in one job during his life.

Mr. Little had this to say on other subjects:

● Poverty — "Far too many Canadians are living below the poverty line. The labor movement should be willing and anxious to sit down with any responsible group in our society and look for the answers."

● Labor legislation — "With very few exceptions they're (labor laws) designed to be prohibitive and restrictive."

● Bad conditions — He said it is "sickening" to think of hospital employees earning $1.38 an hour in "oil-rich Alberta."

Several of those attending the three-day convention, including Mr. Huggett, have said labor should spend more time thinking of social needs. The subject mentioned most often has been poverty.

Another subject which has come in for discussion concerns the claim that unions are better when big. There is a move afoot to merge many of CUPE's small locals (60 per cent of the locals in B.C. have less than 100 members) and to continue the fight for bargaining on a regional basis.
